BEYER HOME IS READY

Elegant House in Winona Park One of Most Imposing on Waters of Indiana—Its Beauties.

One of the most imposing homes to be found on the shores of any lake in northern Indiana is the Beyer home, which is now undergoing its finishing touches in Winona park. It stands on the terrace overlooking the place where Hillside services are held, in fact, the platform from which the speakers are heard is in front of the Beyer doors, and only a short distance away. Many people have watched the construction of this attractive house for in it is found the most permanency than may be seen in any home that has been constructed about the Winona waters. The home was built by Christian Beyer, of Kendallville, and Edward Beyer, of Rochester. It stands near where Christian Beyer, since 1882, owned a cottage, the Hoosier Nest, and a little further up the cement walk is the old summer home of Edward Beyer. The Beyers owned Winona Park before it passed into the hands of Winona Assembly, and they selected for a site for their new house what is to them one of the most historic spots. It was in front of the house that back in the days of Spring Fountain Park, the first name of Winona Park, that the question of whether the old park should be open on the Sabbath was disposed of—settled in favor of Sabbath observance.

The Beyer home forms a striking background for the hillside where Sabbath services are held through the summer and it also forms a reflector for the voices of the speakers and singers. Twelve kinds of cement are to be seen in the outer construction of the house, and each kind may be distinguished by its shade.

The house is reached by a flight of cement steps up four terraces, which are supported by walls of the same material, and on these terraces seats may be placed, increasing the capacity at Hillside services. From the terraces one reaches the veranda, which forms a half-circle around the front of the building. The veranda roof is supported by cement pillars, and this, as well as the roof of the house, is of bright red tile, which gives emphasis to the cement walls of the whole structure. The veranda floor is from eight to ten feet wide, with a tile floor in light red and white. A dozen electric lights in large white globes are overhead, and about the veranda are swings, chairs and tables in forest green.

Three cement arches of graceful design lead through a six-foot loggia, also floored with tiling, to three doors into the house. The Beyer house is two homes under one roof, and the first apartment entered is a spacious court, a marked departure from anything to be found in any other Winona home. The court is twenty-two by thirty feet, with a twenty-foot ceiling. It extends from the first floor to the top of the second, and on the second is a spacious balcony around three sides of it, the stairway going up the fourth side. The court has a tile floor of dark red and white. Its ceiling is in a soft tint, and a skylight in the center is of art glass. The doors and other wood of the lower portion of the court are in mahogany and the furniture is also of mahogany, white willow and green grass.

Going from the lower floor to the balcony, there is a red and black runner up the stairs, and on the landing is a piano. The railing of the balcony is in mahogany and white, the floor is in oak, finished natural, with rugs and runners of black and red. The electric fixtures are in square brass tubes, and the lights are in bunches. Overhead, the ceiling of light tan is finished with wood panels in white and mahogany. The whole court is a delightful setting for the home gatherings of the Beyer families and their friends, for which it was designed, and here each winter will stand a large Christmas tree.

From the balcony of the court, doors on either side lead to the bedrooms of the two homes. There is a long hallway for each side of the house, the rooms opening off from it. The walls are tinted in soft shades, no two apartments alike. The bath rooms are floored with tile and the walls are wainscoted in white tiling, while the upper walls and ceiling are in a dainty blue. One bedroom of each house is in blue with blue rug and massive mahogany furniture. Another is in white with brass beds. There is a linen closet in the hallway and also a linen chute which drops to the laundry to the basement.

But the especial apartment of the whole house, at least from a man's viewpoint, is the top floor. It extends over the two homes and court and is forty-two by twenty-two feet. Here is the den of the Beyer fathers and sons. It is finished in weathered oak throughout, the furniture is in mission pattern, the paneled walls and ceiling are in weathered oak, and so are the box seats at the old English windows, from which one gets a charming picture of the park below. What on the outside of the house are two towers, one at each of the front corners, becomes in the den cozy reading, writing and smoking rooms, secluded from the den itself. These small apartments are also in weathered oak and their chairs and tables are on the mission order. The walls and ceiling are in a tan tint. The ceiling contains a dome in which there are a number of electric bulbs. On the walls are the college colors of Yale and Leland Stanford, attended by the Beyer boys.

Going back to the first floor, one finds the two homes are alike in arrangement. There is a living room in front, off from the court. Each living room has a bay window. The finish and furniture is in golden oak and the floor is in the same hard wood. Holland tile form the fireplaces. Opening from the front room with sliding doors is the dining room, in each house is sixteen by twenty feet, finished in golden oak, with furniture to match it, and with the walls and ceiling in soft tints.

The kitchen is convenient in arrangement. Back of the court is a large garage for the shelter and charging of two automobiles. There is a side door leading to the street in the rear, and another door points the way to the basement.

In the appointments of this elegant house, one sees to what extensive degree modern conveniences are within the easy reach of the home-builder at Winona Lake. Through the basement the steam pipes enter, bringing heat from the plant of the Winona Interurban Railway power-house, nearly a mile away. The steam pipes run up into the house between the walls and connect with radiators that are concealed in the many box seats about the windows. Spring drinking water enters the house through the basement, and a small lift pumps soft water into the laundry and bath rooms.

The Beyer home is a show place of electric appliance. It is doubtful if any home in Indiana can boast so many. Throughout the house are incandescent lights by the dozen, and nearly every one of them is controlled by a switch-board for either side of the house, the switch-boards being in the walls just within the front doors. With all of them set aglow, the house at night makes a brilliant appearance. In the front rooms downstairs and up are fire-places, with tile hearths, and in them are old brass receptacles not

SCHOOLS BEGIN TO-DAY

Teachers and Other Students Start Six Weeks of Work in the Many Departments.

Owing to a law passed by the last legislature, a large number of Indiana school teachers will go into the Winona summer training schools this year that they may be prepared for the enforcement of the new measure, which is operative in 1908. The law requires that before a person can begin the profession of teaching he must have twelve weeks of instruction in a recognized training school. Teachers already in the calling may obtain an increase in salary by taking similar instruction in a training school. A teacher or a beginner may under the law take six weeks of this training this year and six more during the summer of 1908. For this reason many teachers are expected to take the first six weeks of training this year.

The Winona summer schools open today and have been organized that teachers may begin preparations for the new law. The schools will be in session for six weeks, but in 1908 it is the intention to have the schools at the lake open for twelve weeks. Next year the lines of training as mapped out by the State Board of Education will be followed, and this year the instruction will be along normal lines which teachers' training schools have been following, and under which they may have the advantages of the law.

C. M. McDaniel, superintendent of the city schools at Hammond, is principal of the Winona summer schools, and the associate principal is Mrs. Eliza Blaker, president of the Teachers' College at Indianapolis. Hundreds of young teachers have received training for their profession under the guidance of Mrs. Blaker, both in her school at Indianapolis and at Winona Lake. In the summer schools a number of instructors will assist her.

Teachers are coming to Winona Lake in larger number than usual for the further reason that there they can combine a vacation with their school work, for the musical and other programs of entertainment offered by Winona Assembly will be open to them. Winona Lake also offers a teacher who has been in a schoolroom for eight or nine months many outdoor diversions on the water, in the beau-

FOR REST AND WORSHIP

Saturday and Sunday Are Reserved
at Winona—Dr. McClure Delivered the Sermon Yesterday.

Saturday Winona rested from the crowds of Bryan day. Everyone was content to sit on the verandas and enjoy the coolness and the brightness that was everywhere emphasized by the heavy rains of Friday. Rogers' band played on the hillside and the young men and maidens played ball and tennis. There was one person who was not content to sit and rest. He was Judge Brown. From Boys' Camp to general office and from there to Warsaw he went all day long. At his appearance all the small boys round about gathered near to hear him tell them a good story or to know more of the plans for the boys' city.

At Winona Saturday's program is seldom as strenuous as those of the other week days. The afternoons are given up to rest and preparation for the great Sundays that are always filled to overflowing. Yesterday's program was no exception. Dr. McClure preached the morning sermon at the Federated church. Dr. McClure is the president of the McCormick Theological seminary, and was for twenty years the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lake Forrest, Ill.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman was leader in the sacred hillside service. These hillside meetings are very dear to the hearts of Winona people. Meeting under the shade of the trees and lingering until early candle lighting, many have gone from these consecration services filled with new zeal and higher aspirations.

The Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, which had the 8 o'clock service last night, hold the same services on Sunday nights at Winona all season. These associations are very strong at Winona. This is particularly true of the Young Women's Association, which with its bi-weekly meetings in Bethany Hall, creates a most helpful and inspiring atmosphere for the young girls of Winona.

Girls' Club Arrives at Winona.

There will be a girls' club at the Clayton cottage. On Saturday afternoon eleven of the brightest, prettiest girls who ever came in a party to Winona came to this cottage. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Dickey, of the boys' club, will chaperon the party.

The girls are all about eighteen years of age, and have all been pupils of Mr. Dickey, who is superintendent of the schools of Lowell, Ind. All the young ladies are from Lowell, except Miss Florence Friermood, of Greentown. The other young ladies of the party are: Misses Grace, Hattie and Hanna Dehl, Blanche and Edith Kemmey, Margaret Will, Maud Smith, Loa Foster, Ella Palmer and Violet Viant.

"LIFE IN THE LAZY LEVANT"

Most Graphically and Entertainingly
Described by Rev. Frederic
T. Galpin.

Rev. Frederic T. Galpin's lecture on "Life in the Lazy Levant" Saturday evening was entertaining and instructive. It was liberally illustrated by original views of unusual excellence. Starting aboard ship he carried his hearers by graphic word pictures and views through the most interesting points he visited during his trip to the Levant. Among the views was one of Port Said, the acknowledged Sodom and Gomorrah of the world; the beautiful city of Bayreuth, interesting Joppa, glimpses of side-trips through Jerusalem, and a picture of the Dead Sea, the lowest inland sea in the world, being 1,300 feet below sea level. Mr. Galpin gave a very interesting history of the discovery and restoration of De Vinci's celebrated "Last Supper." The dress of the native Bedouin was illustrated by the appearance of a youth impersonating one of that tribe and the lecturer explained the character and significance of the dress of the different classes. Mr. Galpin is an earnest and entertaining speaker. In concluding the series he asked permission of the audience to present a few views descriptive of his work among boys. Among these was one picturing a camp of boys listening to one of Judge Brown's characteristic talks. The lecturer held the close attention of his hearers throughout, and to the large audience present it was a most enjoyable and profitable evening.

Three Band Concerts Daily.

Music lovers will be glad to know that Rogers' band will give three concerts daily all this week. All the morning concerts will be given from the band stand and will be made up for the most part of airs from comic opera. During the week Mr. Roscoe, the leader, expects to play several heavy numbers by Rossini.

Notice to Summer School Students.

Students may see the faculty in their recitation room from two to four this afternoon to make definite arrangements for their summer work. The regular recitations will begin tomorrow morning.

The Summer Music School.

The instructors of the Summer Music School will be at the Club House on the golf links, north of the Winona grounds, from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon to receive students.

THE GORDON Bible & Missionary Training School

BOSTON, MASS.

The Gordon School offers, free of charge to consecrated young men and women of all denominations who feel called of God to Christian work, a two years' course of study best adapted to that end. An able faculty of eleven professors. Fall term opens Wednesday, Oct. 9th. Send for prospectus to Rev. J. A. McElwain, Gen. Supt., Norfolk House, Roxbury, Mass.

THEY LEARN BY DOING

Instruction in the Winona Agricultural Institute Thoroughly Practical—Interesting Exhibit.

Visitors to the Winona Agricultural Institute last week were impressed with the practical nature of the instruction in agriculture offered by the school.

Prof. Brown is in charge of the gardens, and they are most interesting. This spring each student was given a garden 30x60 feet which he had to prepare and plant. As a spur to good work, three prizes were put up, and the young men went to work. The season being backward, much of the seed planted did not grow, and the weather was also favorable for the development of the cabbage root maggot, while the potato bugs feasted on the egg plants, so that the young men had these adverse conditions to meet while under their instructors—a most fortunate thing. Lettuce, radishes, cabbages, turnips, corn, beans, peas, squashes, cucumbers, peppers, egg plants, celery and tomatoes were the chief things planted.

The prizes were awarded in the following order; Harry Browning, Hubert Sybold, Grover Jillett, Will Kelly and Leo Scott.

Prof. W. C. Palmer looks after the experimental grounds in connection with his agricultural teaching. On these grounds, some twenty of the more important grasses are being grown, as well as fifty of the newer and less well known crops that the boys study in farm crops. Some crops are being grown which are not commonly seen in this section, such as cotton, which is making a good showing. The crops are all labeled and make an interesting study. The gardens are just south of the Mount Memorial building, adjoining the campus.

Prof. Palmer takes much pleasure in showing visitors through and talks enthusiastically about the value of the different crops.

SPIRITED REHEARSAL OF CLUB.

Rev. Schaeffer Kept Busy Handing Out Badges to the Happy New Boy Members.

The Boys' and Girls' Club, under Rev. C. T. Schaeffer held a spirited rehearsal Saturday morning at the auditorium. Marching and rallying songs were sung with all the vigor and strength of the fresh young voices. Red ribbon badges floating from the lapel of the coat marked the happy boys who were club members from the others gathered around the information bureau, where Mr. Schaeffer was taking names and handing out badges with both hands.

If Kingery & Myers sell you anything it is just as represented or you get your money back.

An Apostle of Sunshine.

Rev. Tilman Hobson, who addressed the Children's Club yesterday afternoon, is called "the Apostle of Sunshine," and rightly, too, as anyone will know who has met him. He was for a part of two seasons under the direction of Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman in evangelistic meetings in Los Angeles and Seattle and other points on the coast.

While conducting evangelistic services in Oakland, Cal., Rev. Tilman

Rev. Tilman Hobson.

Hobson was invited to speak to the Boys' Club of the Centennial Presbyterian church. During meditation and prayer for the work with the boys the Spirit of God suggested to him two Bible verses in rhyme. This became the Boys' Club yell, known as "Hobson's Choice," or the "Christian Call," or the "Sunbeam Call," it has found its way into all kinds of Christian work the world over, displacing old college and club yells. Many a Christian has been inspired by it; and through its ministry many have been brought to Jesus.

Say! My friend! have you seen Second Timothy, two fifteen? First Thessalonians, five twenty-two, Will tell you exactly what to do.

First Missionary Meeting.

The first missionary meeting for the summer was held at the Marshall Memorial last Saturday afternoon. There was a good attendance of ladies in spite of the shower. Mrs. Ewalt presided. After the hymn, "Break thou the bread of life," was sung, Mrs. Granstaff led the devotional exercises. Her well chosen remarks were based upon Romans 10. Mrs. Wilson led in prayer. An account of the building of the Marshall in memory of Dr. Lyman Marshall was given by Mrs. Ewalt. Mrs. Asher taking the home mission topic gave a very illuminating talk of her experience with her husband among the lumbermen at the Bethel home in Duluth, Minn.

Takashi Komatsu, a student at Mt. Herman and Monmouth College, gave an interesting talk on conditions in Japan.

These missionary meetings will be held each Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Missionaries on the grounds will be called upon to speak.

quite so large as a coal hod. They are lined with copper and in them are long frosted globes of glass into which electricity is turned, the current giving both heat and soft light.

But it is in the kitchen of the two homes where electricity dominates. Every utensil requiring heat may have an electric current attached to it. The coffee is made with an electric percolator. The frying pans are heated by the current from the trolley power-house. The roasts in the wood-encased ovens are heated by electricity. The Beyer linen is ironed with irons heated by the same method—simply attach an electric contrivance and turn on the heat, as one would turn on a light.

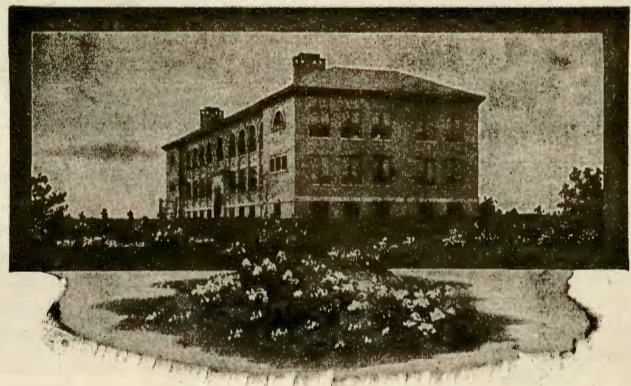

Lift the cloak of a Winona Beyer and one finds the German spirit of hospitality, and it will prevail more than ever, now that the two families are under one roof. The firm of Beyer Brothers has large business agencies in New York, Boston and other cities. Ed Beyer says the new house was built in large part for the needs of these agencies, who are to spend their summer vacations in the home in Winona Park. The families will not abandon their homes in Kendallville and Rochester, but will spend more time at Winona than ever, coming often in the winter.

WINONA LIBRARY SCHOOL

Instructors Arrive and Announcements Are Made Regarding Summer Course—Library Open.

Miss Merica Hoagland, of Indianapolis, dean of the Winona Library School, came to Winona Saturday. With her came Mr. Chalmers Hadley, state organizer of the Indiana Library Commission, Miss Anna R. Phelps, head instructor of the school, and Miss Carrie Scott, who will have charge of the children's work of the Library School. The entire party are at the Swiss Terrace for the season.

Miss Hoagland, who was formerly with the Indiana Library Commission, is director of the Library School of the Technical Institute at Indianapolis, and also dean of the Winona School for Librarians.

The Winona school is for trained librarians who wish to review and add to their knowledge, while the Indianapolis school is for those who have never taken library work.

Mr. Hadley will lecture on library buildings and work with magazines and periodicals, and Miss Hoagland will deliver the lectures on the organization and administration of libraries. Special lectures will be given by Jacob P. Dunn, president of the Public Library Commission, Demarcus C. Brown, state librarian, F. R. Kautz, trustee of Butler College, and Harlow Lindley, of Earlham College.

The Winona public library will open at College Hall this week. The librarian for this year is Miss Mayme Ross, a graduate of the Winona Technical Institute Library School at Indianapolis. The library will be open for five weeks, and any resident of Winona may have the use of books without any expense.

ARTS AND CRAFTS SCHOOL.

Preliminary Announcements for Summer Classes—To Meet in College Hall.

Miss Ellen Inglehart, dean of the Arts and Crafts School, reached Winona Saturday. Miss Inglehart will be at College Hall all day today to receive students. A new department of outdoor sketching has been added this year. The new department will be in charge of Miss Ellen Holmes, a name familiar to all art lovers, as her pictures are often to be seen on the line at the art institutes.

Miss Adelsperger will take the place of Miss Freeman in the pottery and sculpture department. She has already found a choice clay just outside the entrance gate.

Kingery & Myers is the cheapest place in the state to buy dry goods, not barring the large cities.

tiful park and in the deep woods. Many eminent lecturers and ministers will be on the program, and much of what will be offered in the way of entertainment will correlate with the summer school work.

Colleges and high schools will be represented in the teaching force of the Winona schools. The normal department, in which teachers will be especially interested, is in the charge of Mrs. Blaker, who directs kindergarten primary work. C. O. Hoyt, of the Michigan State Normal, will have supervision of the intermediate and grammar grades of the normal training. A good deal of attention will be given to instructing teachers in the duties of a rural school, and this department will be in charge of George Tapy, superintendent of Whitley county.

I. E. Neff, of the South Bend high school, will be the teacher of history and civics, and the other departments and the instructors in charge will be as follows: Physiography, E. E. Ramsey, of the Fort Wayne high school; expression and physical education, Jennie Ray Ormsby, of Indianapolis; arts and crafts, Ellen Inglehart, of Chicago, who will have a number of assistants; public school drawing, Roda E. Selleck, of Shortridge high school, Indianapolis; modern languages, Prof. E. J. Fluegel, of Purdue University; French and Spanish, Charlton Andrews, of the State College of Washington; classical languages, Prof. W. D. Ward, of Occidental College, Los Angeles; astronomy, a new department, C. W. Cogshall, of Indiana University.

Instructors from the various Winona winter schools will be in the summer school teaching force, including the following: English, Frank C. Tilden, of Winona Agricultural Institute; mathematics, W. R. Woodmansee, and physics and chemistry, L. F. Smith, both of Winona Academy for Boys; manual training, W. C. Smith, of the Technical Institute at Indianapolis; agriculture, W. C. Palmer, Winona Agricultural Institute; music, H. C. Owens, of the Winona Conservatory of Music; domestic science, Florence M. Gibson, of Winona Park School for Young Women.

The Indiana Public Library Commission will again conduct its training school for librarians. Chalmers Hadley will be the director, Merica Hoagland will be dean, and there will be a number of instructors and lecturers. The biological station of Indiana University is again under the direction of Prof. Carl Eigenmann.

Nature study, because of the unusual opportunities to study birds, flowers, plant and tree life, is one of the popular features of the Winona summer schools, appealing to many persons who do not enter any other department. The instructor in the nature work will be Prof. John M. Coulter, of the University of Chicago.

KINDERGARTEN SCHOOL

Mrs. Blaker Has Everything in Readiness for the Opening Today—
An Unusual Privilege.

Mrs. Eliza Blaker, vice principal of the Winona Summer School, is particularly interested in the success of the kindergarten and model primary school. The tuition in either school is $3 for the six weeks' course. The three weeks of the school work $1.75, if paid in advance, or 65 cents for each week.

Miss Emma Colbert, of the Teacher's College, of Columbia, N. Y., will be teacher of primary methods and handwork; Miss Grace Norris, of the Teachers' College, Indianapolis, will teach kindergarten theory and handwork. Miss Charlotte Gardiner is teacher of psychology and pedagogy.

The model school will be in charge of Miss Julia Keilholz and she will have for her assistant Miss Mary Eckman, also of Indianapolis. The first four grades will attend this model school and it is an excellent opportunity for any child who wishes to review work or make up a grade.

This school will be held in the basement of the Mount Memorial building with the hours from 9 o'clock to 11:30.

Misses Eleanor Whitcomb and Helen Wallick will have charge of the kindergarten which will be held in Science Hall, just north of The Inn. Misses Frances Woerner, Ruth Patterson and Esther Gordon will be the assistants here. The same hours, from 9 until 11:30, will be observed here as in the model school.

Last year's kindergarten was one of the attractive places of Winona. The classes were large and the happy enthusiastic little children enjoyed themselves royally in the games provided by the resourceful teachers. Every morning the class rooms were crowded with interested mothers, sisters and aunties who enjoyed the games with the children.

It is a great privilege for Winona people thus to have their little ones enjoy the teachings of one of America's greatest educators, and one who has no superior in her primary and kindregarten work. Mrs. Eliza Blaker.

Delighted With Winona.

Mrs. Jennie Weaver, of Bourbon, is a guest of Miss Willa Boulton, of the Pearman cottage. Miss Boulton's mother has leased the cottage for the season and their pleasure and delight over the Winona advantages are so great that they expect in the future to be among the permanent cottagers.

To Assist Mrs. Blaker.

Four young ladies of Indianapolis came to Winona with Mrs. Eliza Blaker yesterday, and will assist her in the kindergarten work. The young ladies are Misses Helen Wallick, Frances Woerner, Ruth Patterson, Julia Kielholz. All are at Evangel Hall.

Winona Who's Who

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Stuart and daughter, of Evanston, Ill., have been visiting Mrs. Wigger, of the B. B. cottage for a week. The Stuarts are staunch friends of Winona, believing this place to be the only spot in the world where the Sabbath is absolutely observed, and here they have found also the best kindergarten that they have ever known. Although leaving Wednesday for South Wales, where Mr. Stuart's mother will be visited for several months, yet they leave with a longing and the hope of returning to make this their future summer home.

Judson W. Vandeventer, the Winona photographer, is a man of many talents. For seven months in the year he is an evangelist, the other five he is a photographer, and all the time he is a writer of songs. Mr. Vandeventer's old home was in Philadelphia and while here he wrote the song that has become famous—"Looking This Way." Mr. Vandeventer has written about seventy songs in all, twenty of which have become good sellers. On July 15 some new sheet music written by Mr. Vandeventer will be published. "I Know Not Why" is the title of the song which Mr. Vandeventer predicts will be the most popular of all. As a boy Mr. Vandeventer liked to whistle tunes. Later in life he found an outlet for the music that was within him by the writing of hymns. Mr. Vandeventer is traveling with the evangelistic committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly and spent the winter in evangelistic work in Florida and Tennessee.

Rev. F. T. Galpin, who delivered the lecture on Saturday evening, is an all around man. He is an athlete of ability, a splendid pipe organist, a fine singer, a good speaker, a deep thinker, and withal a vigorous and able man among men. Rev. Galpin has the largest church boys' club in the United States, in connection with his church in Madison. Three years ago, when Rev. Galpin went to Madison, he found the boys' club just organized. The money that was to have gone for a pipe organ went for a swimming pool, the Sunday school decided to meet in the church and give over its room for a gymnasium. Practically all the Christian boys in Madison belong to Rev. Galpin's club, and he is doing such a splendid work in Madison that it is doubtful if his church will allow him to accept the call to the Second Baptist church of Chicago, which is anxious to secure this strong and many-sided man.

Saturday night the Y. W. C. A. entertained in Bethany Hall for all the young people in the park. Refreshments were served, and some unique games were played. On Tuesday afternoon each week this summer there will be an "at home" given to all the young women at Winona. Each Saturday night the young men are cordially invited from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Have You Registered?

Every person at Winona Park is asked to register by leaving name and park address at the entrance building, the new bureau of information, or at the auditorium. Registration cards have been placed at these places, which are deposited in a box after they are filled out. The purpose of the registration is to enable the bureau of information to bring friends together, and it will also aid in the delivery of telegrams.

Discharged for Breaking Rule.

S. F. Bowser, proprietor of the big Bowser oil works, at Fort Wayne, on Wednesday discharged five of his employes because they broke one of his rules and attended a dance. Mr. Bowser is opposed to dancing and will not employ a man in his large concern who indulges in the pastime.

Rules at the Auditorium.

These two rules will be enforced this season: First, children who are not accompanied by adults will not be permitted in the auditorium. Second, people who cannot remain through a program will take seats where they may leave without disturbing a speaker or the audience.

A New Concert Rule.

Among the rules that are to be enforced at the auditorium is one relative to concerts. While a musical number is being played the doors will be closed and no one will be seated by the ushers until an intermission.
