DAY BEFORE THE FETE

Big Water Carnival Comes Tonight and Today Will Be a Busy One for Participants.

It's tonight! And today is the final day of preparation. After many, many days of thinking and planning, the final touches will be placed on the spectacular events which will mark the Winona Venetian night. There is every promise that the big water fete will eclipse similar ones given on the Winona waters in other years. The plans for the "Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers," for the parade of the nations, the contest for $40 in prizes by decorated boats, the coming of the Norsemen to America, have all been fully organized and the last work on them will be done today. The big gunboats that are to fight a stormy, noisy battle off McDonald Island are getting in trim for their demonstration. The fireworks and the searchlights which are to illuminate the parade grounds of the fleets of boats are ready for use.

Today most everybody, it seems, about the park will "get busy." A booth for the sale of bunting, flags and lanterns was opened in the park yesterday morning and the demand for boat decorations was lively. People carried away supplies from the booth by the basketful and by the arm load. The demand for the brilliant lanterns was especially heavy. The sale will continue this morning, beginning at 8:30.

For days those who will participate in the parades have been reserving their craft at the boathouse, and this morning will begin working out their schemes of ornamentation. That the carnival is going to be a glowing success is already assured by the number of boats spoken for. Only boats that are decorated will be allowed on the lake.

Those who will participate in the parades are asked to report to Edwin A. Knapp at The Review office today and receive their numbers. Every boat in line must have a number, and until 6 p. m. the numbers may be obtained at The Review office. After 6 they may be had at the boathouse. All of the movements of the different spectacles on the water will be directed by Mr. Knapp, who will keep on the move in a launch. The parade, made up of all boats, will start promptly at 7:45 o'clock. The boats will form in line off the north shore of McDonald Island, between the steamer dock and Dr. Dickey's residence. The contestants for prizes are to take their places in the line according to their number and must stay in line until dismissed by Mr. Knapp. Any contestant not in line at 7:45, or who leaves the line before dismissed, will be disqualified.

After the parade, all participants are asked to assemble near the grandstand until after the display of fireworks, that all danger may be avoided.

The story of the Norsemen and their coming to America will be strikingly illustrated at the carnival tonight. History says that in the year 1,000, Lief Erickson sailed from Iceland and touched the main land of North America, and in 1007, one Karkfin also landed on the continent. The legend goes that Lief came with his son Eric, then ten years old, and the father later became an extensive explorer. Although neither left evidence of their landings. Their queer boats were called vikings and were propelled by oar or sail, and their broad sails were decorated with emblems of Norseman life.

The carnival spectacle will show Lief and his soldiers, arrayed in full armor, landing in America, and fifteen will man the boat, which will come over the Winona waters at full sail. Full equipment for navigation will be carried and a fair illustration of the character, customs and life of the first white men to reach America will be shown. Z. C. Sanderson will be in command of the Norsemen's craft, and his sailors and soldiers will be from the Winona Normal school. Preparations for the Norseman spectacle have been under way for some time. Their ship will be the first to come across the bay of the lake and it will be the last to leave.

Spelling Match Tomorrow.

The annual Winona Spelling match will take place in the auditorium Saturday afternoon at 2:30. All spellers are urged to enter the contest. The arrangements of the plans are in the hands of Prof. Rigdon, of the Winona Normal school, and the contest will be carried forward according to the latest approved rules and methods. The Assembly management offers $35 in prizes: First, $20; second, $10, and third, $5. With the large number of Normal students in attendance and the many good spellers on the grounds there should be an earnest competition for honors as well as the prizes offered.

THE RONEY BOYS AGAIN.

Gifted Young Singers Have an Enthusiastic Welcome to Winona.

The Roney boys did not get to Winona last year, the only omission they had made in a number of years, and they found a hearty welcome awaiting them at the auditorium when they appeared last night. They are the same "old" enjoyable Roney boys, singing with their usual vigor and freshness. Lovers of genuine music find much pleasure in the Roney concerts, for the boys and their director have high ideals and constantly work to them, giving their music a finished and artistic interpretation. There is no link between these singers and "coon" songs and frothy music hall effusions. Of course, the singers were showered with applause, and, of course, the audience was large. It always is when the Roney boys come to Winona. They will give another concert this afternoon.

Lecture on "Peer Gynt."

Miss Adelaide S. Baylor, superintendent of schools at Wabash, spoke at Westminster chapel yesterday afternoon. She read from Ibsen's drama, "Peer Gynt," and discussed the play and its author. Edmond Greig composed the music for the drama and Miss Baylor told of the composer's life with the same charm as she discussed the play.

Miss Polk played Greig's interpretations on the piano as Miss Baylor read several passages.

Bible Students at Dinner Party.

In honor of Miss Grace Sape, of Chicago; Mrs. C. F. Menninger, of Topeka, Kan., entertained last night at dinner at her cottage, the Bonniview. Among the guests were Miss Saxe, Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, Dr. Covert, Mrs. Stephens and Miss Lois Talbert.

Boys' Club Outing.

Teh Boys' club, accompanied by Lewis Scott, took provisions enough for two meals and went across the lake where they spent the night. After an appetizing breakfast cooked by themselves, they all returned home, reporting a fine time.

Mrs. Meninger Will Speak.

All who are interested in Bible study for girls are invited to be at Raikes Hall at 1:30 o'clock, on Monday, when Mrs. Menninger, an experienced Bible teacher, of Topeka, will give suggestions.

POLITICS IN THE BOY CITY

Campaign for Office Is Heated Like August Temperature—Craftiness of the Candidates.

The end of the heated campaign for city offices in the Winona Boy City comes this afternoon, for the voting begins at 4 o'clock. Both parties have complete tickets in the field, and the last of the trading and scheming will be done today. The tickets are:

Conservatives—Mayor, Merrill H. Farr, of Chicago; treasurer, Bradley Reynolds, South Bend; clerk, Dean Myers, South Bend; board of public work, Bruce Patterson, Decatur, Ind.; Fred Naylor, Goshen; — Harrison, Peru.

Liberals—Mayer, Joe Clark, of Portland, Ind.; treasurer, Weir Cook, Anderson; clerk, Newman Esther, Madison, Wis.; board of public works, Arthur Beyer, Winona Lake; Herbert Frankel, Lima, O.; Edward Sheppard.

The campaign in these last few days has been as heated as the weather. Joe Clark is urging his party to stand together and vote a straight ticket. Farr is asking that the voters consider individual, rather than parties, between which there is no material difference, and "scratch" the tickets. Through the work of the candidates and their closer henchmen a craftiness has been shown that would do credit to men of experience in the game. Merrill Farr, who has been seeking the office of mayor for less than ten days, claims that he has Joe Clark, who has been after the office for a year, "on the run." Farr says he has all but one of the votes of the Portland, Ind., camp, to which Clark belongs, pledged to him, the conservative party. Farr also says that he has lined up fifty-two boys brought here from over the United States by the Saturday Evening Post, and here is a goodly bunch with which Clark has not reckoned during his year's campaign. Clark has two boys from Peru on the ticket of his party, the liberals, and Farr thinks he has divided the Peru vote by just as smooth a trick. He has placed a Peru boy on his ticket. Farr says he will get most of the vote from the Goshen camp, to which one of Clark's strongest supporters—present Mayor Frank Abbott—belongs, for Fred Naylor, of Goshen, is a candidate on the conservative ticket. Farr is rounding up the boys from Illinois, his home State, and will, he said, get practically all of them, although he is not trying to play the Illinois vote against the Indiana vote.

The Anderson camp, made up of about fifty "kids," is the chief fighting ground of the two candidates. Farr concedes that a "man" on Clark's ticket—Weir Cook—will be elected city treasurer. Weir is an Anderson boy.

There is no material difference in the platforms of the two parties, and the young civilians are unconsciously dividing into two divisions without political reasons. It is evident that the greater portion of the small boys in the camp are for Clark, while the older votes are for Farr.

The outcome of the election is in as much doubt and is awaited with as much interest by the hundreds of "kids" in the camp, as is the result of the real election in Indiana next fall. The voting is to be under the Australian system.

A LECTURE ON PARKMAN.

Dr. Vincent Discussed the Historian and His Work.

"Parkman and the Story of New France" was the subject of Dr. Vincent's lecture yesterday. As a boy Parkman haunted the woods, the lecturer said, and the forest was his home. In this he differed from all the other historians. Their inspiration came from books, while Parkman reverted to the wild for inspiration. This love of out-of-door life went in hand with a love for physical development, but in gymnasium work he strained himself, and the injury troubled him all through life. After graduating from college Parkman studied law and was later admitted to the bar. Though law was his profession, his interest was in the study of Indian life. By 1845 Parkman had read every book to be found on the Indian and he decided to make a trip to the West and study this life at close range. Here he lived in the tent with a chief and made long rides with the Indians. The Indian was then in his glory and here it was that Parkman gathered material for his history of Pontiac. This was a perfect picture of Indian life, but the exposure incident to the trip all but ruined the health of the historian and left his eyes permanently injured.

Mr. Vincent praised the story of Pontiac and says he doubts if the history of New France would ever have been written had not Parkman had this wonderful training. Without Parkman's history much of the early history of our country would have been a closed book. The immediate outcome of this Western trip was a book entitled "The Oregon Trail," which, according to Mr. Vincent, should be in the library of every home where there is a boy.

The weakness of the eyes of both Prescott and Parkman was a great trial to both historians, but to Parkman much greater, for Prescott was sedentary while Parkman longed for the trail and active forest life.

Parkman was twenty-six when he wrote the "Conspiracy of Pontiac," and in the book is found all the youth and exuberance of Parkman. The book is one of motion and page after page is read with abated breath. Short sentences abound. The mind of the reader need never pause for an entailed sentence or thought. There is a captivating manner in Parkman's style and it is the result of his enthusiasm over his work.

Parkman's health continued to fail and he went abroad to consult eminent specialists. He was told that he would probably go insane and might die within a year. In 1846 Parkman was hunting buffaloes on the plains of the West in company of Sioux Indians. In 1858 he was wheeling himself about in a chair wrapped in a shawl and making every effort to regain his health. He, however, objected to being called feeble and it was the regret of his life that he could not fight in the civil war.

Everything appealing to the heroic is to be found in the glowing pages of New France. He is no American who cannot admire the characters of Parkman's histories, said Mr. Vincent.

Some of the earlier volumes of the New France seem a little unjointed, but this is overcome in the later volumes and the volume on Wolfe and Mountcalm is nearest perfection. Parkman's power to subordinate all details to a purpose was great, but this he had in common with other historians. Parkman made history real, he is geographically correct and yet his visits to the historic places were the visits of the artist who wished the inspiration of the scene. The background of his historic drama is perfect and he gave to dead facts new life through his imagination.

Recognition in high places pleased him, but a greater pleasure came in the letter of a boy who said that he was enjoying the "Conspiracy of Pontiac."

Parkman's life is a challenge to the man of good health to accomplish what this feeble-bodied historian strove to do.

The Bethany Girls.

Hundreds of girls scattered over the country have gained their visions of service at the twilight meetings at Bethany Hall. The songs, the talks with the Master, and the message from His servant make those twenty minutes very precious. Mrs. Bessner's talk last evening was on "Guidance." Grateful acknowledgement of past and present guidance.—Proverbs 3:6. Committing of the way.—Ps. 87:5.

Special Conference.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Covert will conduct a conference at Raikes Hall on the writings of Paul. All interested in this study are invited.

BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX

One of the Most Powerful Characters
in All Religious History—Savanarola Today.

Dr. Covert's 11 o'clock hour yesterday was given to Bernard of Clairvaux, and in his discussion, the speaker said that the state of society in the time of Bernard made a dark background against which to show this saintly man's brightness. The church was in an almost hopeless state in the tenth and eleventh centuries. Rome was the center of the church's pollution and it was a hotbed of corruption. The most wicked emperor Rome ever knew was on the throne. The condition in the church was fully as deplorable. Rival popes were conspiring to unseat each other, and intrigue and assassination were common. Morally, the state of affairs in the courts of the church in Rome were so vile as to be unrepeatable. Learning was discouraged and superstition rampant. The ignorant were in a state of fear. It seemed as though the church had lost its virtue and had given itself up to a carnival of crime and lust. All the monasteries were not corrupt and degraded. A great many of them were hives of industry where the monks worked at farming and the various trades. These monasteries were the only sources of education. The world owes a great debt to the monks for the books that were written and preserved in this dark age of the world's history. The most careful work the monks did on the Bible. The Bible records were very carefully guarded by them. The monasteries thus became the only source of light and missionary effort.

It was at such a time that Bernard of Clairvaux appeared. He was born A. D. 1091. His mother was a sweet, angelic character who deeply left her impress on her second son, Bernard. The crusades were just beginning. Bernard was eight years old when he was told that the crusaders had stormed and taken Jerusalem, and rescued the Holy Sepulchre from the Saracens. This fired his youthful heart.

Bernard's mother died early and left him a lonely youth. He was naturally deeply religious. His only folly recorded in his youth was joining a band of pillagers. While on this expedition he saw a vision of his mother, and left his comrades and entered a monastery, persuading his brothers to join him. He was then twenty-one. He chose an obscure monastery. His coming brought new life. He was given charge of a colony of preachers, where he erected the monastery of Clairvaux. In appearance he was tall and sinewy. His intense spirituality was coupled with a superb courage. He was fearless in rebuking the popes and nobility and compelled them to put into effect many reforms. Yet with all his courage he was tender as a woman. He soon became the most sought after man in Europe.

When Barnard was fifty-four, the tide seemed to turn against him. The crusaders had lost all they had gained from the Saracens and he was urged to agitate a new crusade. He went up and down the land on this mission until the people became frenzied. New armies started for Jerusalem led by kings and queens and filled with all classes of people. The great exodus caused much suffering at home. Bernard died suddenly at the age of sixty-two in the valley of Clairvaux, where he had founded the monastery. With Bernard there was no hair splitting theology. He took the Bible as he found it and lived and taught it. He was no dreaming mystic, but made a practical use of God's laws. If he lived today all skeptics and doubters would be silenced, for he had a simple, positive faith, and lived what he believed.

Dr. Covert will give his last lecture on the great spiritual worthies today, taking as his subject the most towering figure of the Middle Ages—Savanarola.

INVESTMENT TALKS NO. 22.

Nowhere in the world has interurban travel been brought to as high a state of efficiency as in central and northern Indiana. Strangely enough, however, no electric line has connected these two great systems. From Goshen, southern terminus of the northern system, to Peru, northern terminus of the central system, is 68 miles. Winona Lake is almost in the center of this line, and therein lay Winona's opportunity.

The Winona Interurban Railway
was therefore projected first, to fill this gap in an otherwise perfect system; second, to furnish better transportation facilities for the hundreds of thousands who annually visit Winona;
third, to obtain revenue for the Winona schools; fourth to prove that an electric line can be operated profitably
when the wheels stop at 11:50 Saturday night and do not start again until 5 o'clock Monday morning. A very unusual combination of sentiment and sound business.

$115,000 in subsidies are waiting to be paid over to the road when the first car is run from Warsaw to Peru.
This can be accomplished by the sale
of only $100,000 more securities.

The completion of this road will be a great step toward the consummation of the lofty ideal of Winona's leaders
—a self-supporting philanthropy.

JAMES A PRACTICAL BOOK

Contains Some of the Best Definitions in the Bible Regarding Christian Conduct.

Dr. Palmer devoted the 10 o'clock Bible hour yesterday to the importance and methods of committal of Scripture and the book of James.

The source of the church, said the speaker is the Word of God. The apostles stored up passages of Scripture. Peter drew on them in the day of Pentecost to make him strong. One good method of remembering Scripture is to have a skeleton of initial letters which are keys to the various passages and chapters. For instance, Dr. Palmer always recalls the order of Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians by the initials G, E, P, C, and I Thessalonians, II Thessalonians, I Timothy and Titus by four T's. There are three strong reasons for the committal of Scriptures. First, for personal use in temptation—example Christ. Second, personal use in trouble—examples David, Jonah and Christ. Third, personal help to others. Another good way is to take a chapter and make an illustrative plan of its prominent features. A good subject for this is the 103d Psalm.

Taking up the book of James, Dr. Palmer said the themes of some of the chapters might be given as follows: First, works; second, works; third, the tongue. There is a great variety in the contents of James, from the duties of an usher to war. There is no conflict between Paul and James, as some critics have alleged. James emphasizes the importance of works as the credentials of a Christian. The book of James is full of comparisons. James is a practical man. He uses everyday expressions. There are many striking passages, and James abounds in practical religious phrases. A very helpful passage to all Christians who have a hard fight with temptation is "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations." When we plan for the future, it is well for us to recognize God. It is in James we find the condition "If the Lord will." James is a book of practical commands. It is full of practical religious definitions. Perhaps the best definition of sin in the Bible is in James, the passage which says: "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Another idea brought out in James is that our efforts will not be crowned with success if we have not faith and God's approval as proved by our works. James is also a book of practical religious descriptions. It is in this book we find the saying: "Let no man say he is tempted of God." James tells of the new birth, 1:18, and a saving faith. One-fifth of James is taken up with passages relating to the tongue. An interesting coincidence is that the same proportion of space is devoted to the tongue in Proverbs. James is further a book of practical religious recipes. It tells how to resist the devil and to be sure of God's presence; what to do in suffering and sickness. The multiplication of sects and orders has grown out of the failure of the church to follow the plain commands of the Scripture, notably about ministering to the sick. How many Christians follow the command in James about treating the sick?

James calls the unbridled tongue a world of iniquity. If one cannot tame their tongue, he should ask God's help and have faith He will do it.

Today I John will be Dr. Palmer's subject at the 10 o'clock hour.

SECOND LETTER BY PAUL.

Message to the Corinthians Discussed
by Dr. Covert.

Dr. Covert continued his study of the Apostle Paul at the 9 o'clock Bible hour yesterday. The second letter to the Corinthians was the special theme of the morning talk.

This is one of the most difficult letters to approach. Paul seemed to have written it in a disturbed state of mind. He was smarting under severe criticism and this letter was written in answer to the calumny. All good men are criticised. All men in the Bible were criticised and there is today no good Christian man who is not stung with criticism. The great heart of this letter is the noble leader and worker wounded by false criticism until his heart cried out for approval. Month after month Paul had kept still, but at last broke forth in his vehement letter. The letter was written somewhere in Macedonia, probably in Philippi. Titus comes to Paul with the story of what the condition of the Christians is, and the criticisms of the leader.

No one can understand the character of Paul aright until this second letter is read. It reveals as no other the human man and the tumult of passion that is restrained.

Many subjects are brought up in this letter that are not revelant and are hard to understand. Dr. Covert thinks that Paul was broken down physically at this time, that he was a nervous breakdown and "bore on his body the marks of the Lord Jesus." The letter was written by a living martyr and with eyes smarting and weakened body, he gathered all his strength and poured it out in this letter.

There were many little parties in Corinth opposed to Paul. There was criticism of his person, teachings and character. He was accused of being a weak-looking man, and Paul answered "God is no respecter of persons."

When one thinks of the distances Paul traveled it is a wonder that he survived. When accused of being weak, Paul again says, "When I am weak, then am I strong." His personal appearance was attacked at many other places in the letter. Paul was accused of being domineering and a despot and answers that he is not a despot but that he is teaching Lord Jesus and that the Corinthians were binding the people by the old customs.

Paul was unusually sensitive about his apostleship and when accused of not being a true apostle he cries out "God called me." Paul did not live when Jesus did and these critics said they would follow Peter, who knew of Christ. Since Paul had thrown off his Jewish teachings, the critics said that he was nothing and had no definite place in society.

When accused of preaching a hidden Gospel Paul said that it was open to those who would see. "I preach Christ, and not myself." Here was a great opportunity for a man to preach himself and set himself up as the head of a church, but with Paul it was Christ always.

When charged with not having letters of commendation Paul said to the Christians, "You are my letters." Accused of fickleness Paul answers, "Our word toward you is not fickle, it is yea and nay." "Are you going to let this man suck you dry?" was the question asked by Paul's critics. They charged him with collecting money and not using it for the purposes for which it was given. Nothing could have hurt Paul more, and in the twelfth chapter Paul answers his enemies. Accused even of being weak-minded, Paul answers for his hearers to bear with him even if he be weak-minded, for they are wise.

In the study Dr. Covert emphasized the human side of the letter, omitting the spiritual teaching. This was done with the intent of causing the heart to beat more in sympathy with the apostle who was human though truly a man of God.

One of the lessons to be drawn from this letter are that we should guard against unfair criticisms of men and women today, and a good life answers all contemptible criticisms and that God takes care of his own.

WARSAW, INDIANA

Calls answered night or day.

There are a great many persons who find that after any little excitement or unusual exertion they are sure to have headache; or if they have the least little cold it results in Neuralgia. Many are unable to get relief, only after a spell of severe suffering. They cannot understand why they are afflicted in this way. The fact is, all aches or pains are nervous disorders, and indicate a weakness or exhaustion of certain nerve branches. For instance, if it is headache, the brain nerves are irritated through weakness or exhaustion; if neuralgia it is an affection of the more prominent nerve branches in the head or some part of the body, more frequently in the facial nerves. To overcome troubles of this nature you must have a remedy that will quiet the irritable condition of these nerves. There is no more successful remedy for this purpose than Dr. Miles' AntiPain Pills. In fact they are used by sufferers from these causes in almost every town, city or hamlet in the United States. Because they leave no disagreeable after-effects and do not derange the stomach or bowels, those who use them once are almost sure to keep them by them for future use and to hand to friends who suffer in like manner. They are equally good for the relief of rheumatism, sciatica, headache or other aches and pains in any part of the body, for their quieting influence seldom fails to bring relief from any pain. They are sold in all drug stores. Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Indiana, will mail aluminum souvenir box with samples free, on request by postal card.
