SOME LIGHT ON GENESIS

Races of Men Discussed by Dr. R. W. Rogers—What One Chapter Means.

Dr. Robert W. Rogers, who for many years has kept a strong mind in the channels of profound thought of Biblical and historical questions, who can hold up a clouded chapter of the Scriptures so that it is as clear to an audience as a sheet of plate glass, discussed the human races to 600 or 800 men and women who forgot the heat of the atmosphere yesterday. He gave his attention to the tenth chapter of Genesis and said that an immense amount of thought has gone into this chapter in the last fifty years, and that many may have broken their heads over how this chapter got into Genesis. It is, he said, although it contains only a list of names, a marvelous document to students of the Scriptures, for it throws a bright light on the people of the most remote times. It bears the names of races of men—migrating races—names of cities and of countries. By a right approach to this chapter, he said, one gets an idea what in more recent centuries has come out of the great families of mankind.

"Races cannot any longer be classified by the color of the skin," Dr. Rogers said, "for one cannot tell where one race ends and another begins. There are no real blacks any more, although I have seen them in Nubia so black that the color of the skin could be seen in an absolutely dark room."

"But in the great races of men it is absolutely certain the color has not changed as far back as history of humankind goes—4000 B. C. The reddish brown of the Egyptian is unchanged. The negro would be unchanged if his blood were not mixed with that of other races. But there is not on the earth today an absolutely pure race. It is said that the Jews are, but the Bible distinctly says the Jews are a mixed race."

"The structure, arrangement and color of the hair has much to do with the classifications of races of men. They might be divided into straight and curly haired races. If the form of the hair is flat in a race, it turns to kinks. In some races the hair grows down on the forehead almost to the eyebrows. In other races it does not."

The Orchestra and Its Soloists

By E. J. Fluegel, of Purdue University

Weber's "Oberon," with its changing pictures of rustic simplicity and oriental splendor, of city tumult and hermit life, of fearful deserts and elysian meadows, of knightly combats and magic dances, of joyful feasts and miserable shipwreck, of delight and grief, hope and despair, of heroism, constancy, friendship, and the final triumph of a stout and trusting heart, like "Der Freischuetz" and "Euryanthe" by the same composer, are works of great historical importance on account of the deep influence they have had upon the composers of the following period, men like Mendelssohn and Richard Wagner. They were born out of romanticism, a most awkward and inadequate name for a literary, artistic and philosophical movement of a highly composite nature and most diversified ramifications.

What a difference between this world of the romanticists and that of an eighteenth century rationalist! How much less clear the air, how much more hemmed in the intellectual view, how much more vague and confused the outlines of things! But on the other hand, what a deepening of spiritual insight, what a widening of the imagination, what a quickening of the emotions has taken place! How much nearer seems the heart of nature, how much richer are the colors of life!

We feel that a new age has opened, that another Renaissance has dawned. And if we cannot be surprised that in its trail there should have appeared the lurid figure of the Fate Tragedy, the spooks and all the other reactionary ghosts, we also understand why there should have arisen from it literature and music gentle fairies, good-natured pessimists, naive children of the people, amiable dreamers, why it should have given rise to the revival of a truly popular stage, why it should have unloosed the deepest chords of Beethoven's soul and called forth a wealth of melodies from Weber and Schubert, why it should have inspired artists to reveal the innermost secrets and longings of the popular heart, why it should have given a second youth to the aged Goethe, why it should have given life to the best in German lyrics of the nineteenth century from Uhland and Heine to Scheffel and Richard Wagner.

Considerations like these give the key to the understanding and appreciation of Weber, whom we will hear through the Thomas Orchestra at his best this afternoon.

Wonderfully tender was the introduction of the overture of "Oberon" at the concert of Tuesday night. Wonderfully powerful in its triumphant close with melodies, dancing rhythms, richly interspersed. A masterpiece of instrumentation and interpretation was selection No. 2, Svensden's legend,

"Zorohayda." The many different effects gave the musicians in general and the violin solo of Mr. Becker in particular an opportunity to show their skill. Great applause! What a response! Haendel's "Largo" in a perfection of tone and execution that was simply overwhelming by its grandeur.

In the following number, Saint-Saens, the leader of the French composers of instrumental music of the present time, painted before us in the most realistic manner the famous "Danse Macabre," an allegoric representation of Death conducting a fantastic danse, during the hours of midnight and the cock's crow, in which the figures of persons in various walks of life, popes, kings, lords, ladies, etc., appear. Gruesome indeed, when the bones begin to rattle and the souls of the dead ones sing their songs of woe and penitence! A part of it was repeated.

After the intermission, the overture of Rienzi showed this master in that style of music, quite different from his last compositions, in which he made his initial bow before the world in an opera (1842). Mr. Van den Berg proved to be a virtuoso on an instrument which, perhaps, was not quite the equal of his power of expression and depth of conception of such a piece as Liszt's arrangement of Schubert's "Wanderer" is. The orchestra assisted him congenially. The audience was rewarded for their appreciation by a ballad by Moszkowski, the rendering of which was phenomenal as regards technique. The evening closed with several movements from Glazounow's "Ballet Scenes."

On Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30, an audience assembled which was extremely eager to hear Mrs. Josephine Bremmerman Edmunds, the Indianapolis singer. What a wealth of voice, perfection of training and dramatic power! Intonation, from the lowest to the highest notes, accurate, blending of registers perfect, quality of tone always excellent and most pleasing to the ear. Indeed, Indiana may be proud of such a singer! All that had been said about her before she appeared at Winona was more than deserved. Mrs. Edmunds' rendering of Gounod's aria "More Regal in His Low Estate," was excellent. After the first song, an aria from "Tannhaeuser," she responded to an encore most graciously, but was justified in refusing after the second. Fortunately for all music lovers, Mrs. Edmunds will be heard again during the matinees of today and Saturday in compositions that seem extremely well suited to bring out the best that is in this eminent singer's voice and style. Tschalkowski's 6th symphony (Pathetique) in B minor, the gay and lively ballet music from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," the intermezzo from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Smetana's symphonic poem, "Moldau," ended a program worthy in selection and execution of this orchestra and its leader.

MUSIC LOVERS AT WINONA

No Signs of Lagging Interest in the Programs of the Thomas Orchestra.

Neither interest nor attendance show signs of abatement in the Thomas orchestra concerts at Winona Lake. Rather than that, the mid-summer music festival is a magnet which day by day draws more music lovers from over the country, making it a memorable week in the twelve years of Winona history. The programs of the orchestra are in full harmony of the summer days, and so perfect is the music that a critic can go fault hunting with the assurance of coming back empty handed.

Contrary to the rule which prevails when the orchestra is playing at its home in Chicago, Frederick Stock, the conductor, is yielding frequently to the urgent demands of his audiences and giving freely of encores. He is receiving praise from many who are in the audiences who greet him as they see him hurrying through the Park to a rehearsal, and he is as pleased with the favor his musicians are receiving as the thousands of music lovers here are in giving it.

Three soloists will be heard in two concerts today, making it one of the most important days of the Thomas week—if one day can outrank another. Mrs. Edmunds, who proved her worth as a singer yesterday, will sing again this afternoon, and the last number on the same program will be a violin obligato by Ludwig Becker, whose playing in the orchestra has already won attention.

The soloist tonight will be Bruno Steindel, one of the world's masters of the cello. For years he was first cellist of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, and he was chosen for the place from among fifty of the great cellists of the earth. He has been identified with the Thomas Orchestra since in 1892.

Mr. Stock works much harder during his mornings at Winona than he does at the afternoon and night concerts. During the morning his orchestra spends an hour or more at practice under his direction, and Mr. Stock comes out of it with a wilted collar. The language of the players is German, and it is in this tongue that the conductor speaks during the practice hour. He frequently stops the music and sings the air, when he makes known the emphasis that is to be given certain notes. Again, he will carry on a brief conversation with Bruno Steindel, who sits in front of the conductor behind his cello, and directs the orchestra at the same time.

At other times, Mr. Stock will smile his pleasure when the orchestra moves through a difficult musical phrase and will say "That is good!" At still other times he will stop the work of his musicians, and have them begin again. During the practice hours the orchestra does not play complete numbers. The music of the next concert is taken out of the heavy wooden cases in which the scores are shipped and placed on the racks of the musicians. Then Mr. Stock chooses the parts of different numbers in which the orchestra needs a little drilling, and only these are played. During the practice hours he makes it very clear that he is the hardest worker in the whole organization.

READING FOR CULTURE.

Prof. Dunn, of Starke County, Was the Speaker at Convocation.

The convocation address yesterday was by Prof. J. Walter Dunn, superintendent of Starke county. Prof. Dunn, in an earnest manner, spoke on "Reading for Culture." He said: "Culture is not polish, it is not manners, it is not what a man seems to be, not reputation, not that which appears upon the surface in the drawing-room, in the parlor, or in public." Prof. Dunn then defined culture, quoting from Macle, Van Dyke, Bates and others. He said it brings liberation from provincialism, freshness of feeling and employs the ability to see a thing anew. Why, how and what to read for culture was then discussed by the speaker, showing the power of books, and the delight, companionship and deep abiding interest one must have with books.

Prof. Dunn decried the reading for pleasure and entertainment only. He spoke of the importance of education to bring about the desired end of reading for culture, including the life lessons bound up in fiction, especially in the works of Shakespeare and Dickens. The Bible, Homer, Dante, Shakespeare and Goethe were named as the most important of the classics on which Prof. Dunn placed stress. The four essential things that one must secure from reading, the speaker said, are vitality, truth, power and beauty. Prof. Dunn closed his address with a final appeal to the teachers to read something that would direct their attention as to what and how to read before beginning the reading.

Golf Tournament.

The regular Saturday handicap tournament will come off at the usual hour Saturday morning, 10 o'clock. Several familiar faces of former seasons will be seen in this tournament, among them Mr. Ormond and Dr. Burnett, both of whom have won prizes here in former years.

SCHOOL OPENS AUGUST 9.

For Ten Days Sunday School Workers Will Be Trained at Winona.

There is held annually at Winona Lake a school for the training of Sunday school workers. The school is under the joint auspices of the State Associations of Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Illinois and the Winona Assembly. This is known as the "Fourth International District Training School" for all Sunday School workers. The session of 1906, which is the third annual session, begins August 9 and continues until the 18th. It was organized in 1903, in the month of December, at Indianapolis, and held very successful sessions in both 1904 and 1905. The enrollment in 1905 was over 500 students.

Among the faculty for the present season are: Dr. H. M. Hamill, of Nashville, Tenn., who is dean, with General Secretary Marion Lawrance, of Toledo, Ohio, as vice dean. With these are: Miss Grace M. Longfellow, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. M. F. Bryner, Peoria, Ill.; Florence H. Darnell, Philadelphia; Mrs. H. M. Hamill, Rev. C. E. Scott, Albion, Mich., together with General Secretaries Dr. Joseph Clark, Columbus, Ohio; W. B. Jacobs, Chicago; Prof. E. A. Fox, Louisville, and Rev. E. W. Halpenny, Indianapolis.

During the ten days of this school there will also meet at Winona Lake the executive committee of the International Sunday School Association, which is composed of one representative from each state and province on the continent, including also the West Indies, the Philippines, Mexico and Central America. This is the annual meeting of that body of men who, between international conventions (held triennially), control the affairs of the largest religious association in America.

In each of the five states comprising the Fourth International District, almost every county is organized with a corps of officers, more or less full, under the direction of the state organization. During the week beginning August 13 the workers in the organization—state, county and township—are called together for a conference. The session to be interspersed between the programs of the other meetings. For two of the days there has also been called a conference of all persons in the district of the five states who may be interested in the training of teachers for the Sunday School.

It is safe to say that never in the history of the American people was there such an important period of time in the interest of this rapidly growing department of religious effort—the Sunday School.

AGAINST THE CIGARETTE.Miss Gaston Is Organizing Local Campaigns in Indiana.

Miss Lucy Page Gaston, national superintendent of the Anti-Cigarette League; R. A. Ogg, of Kokomo, president of the league in Indiana, and Senator Parks, of Plymouth, father of the Indiana anti-cigarette law, have held a conference at Winona, when they planned further work toward suppressing the cigarette in this state. Senator Parks is going to revise the law and offer it to the next session of the Indiana legislature. He will strengthen it in the weak clause which the Supreme Court pointed out, when it found that the law did not prevent the smoking of the "coffin nails."

Miss Gaston is traveling over Indiana in the effort to arouse the mothers and fathers against the habit, and she will spend considerable time at Winona Lake this summer talking with Sunday School and church workers on how to conduct campaigns against the cigarette in local communities.

Miss Gaston says that what is needed to make the present Indiana law effective is a law from Congress which would forbid the shipping of cigarettes from one state into another where there is a legal act against them. She has organized a committee of 100 adults in Logansport to conduct a local campaign against the cigarette evil. She has organized a similar committee at Fort Wayne and says she has invitations from many points in Indiana which she hopes to accept. These committees may work under existing anti-cigarette organizations, or may conduct their own campaigns.

She is trying to interest women's clubs, churches, schools and other organizations and array them in active effort toward the cigarette. She already has the support of the W. C. T. U. in every community where it is represented. Miss Gaston says the people of Indiana have not heard the last of the effort to drive the cigarette out of the state by any means—that they are only beginning to hear of it.

Through the efforts of Miss Gaston an anti-cigarette movement has been started at Winona Park in which D. S. Wells, E. A. K. Hackett, L. L. Smith, and a number of others are taking an interest. Miss Miller, who will through the day be found near the auditorium, is the local representative of the movement.

REAL ESTATE OUTLOOK.Prospects for Sale of Lots in New Addition.

The crowded condition of cottages, most of which have all the visitors they can take care of, are causing people of means who are seeking investments to give attention to Winona real estate this summer. There is not an unoccupied cottage around the lake, and many more could be rented if they were available. Prospective investors are waiting with interest for the opening of the Seventh Amended Addition, as it is known, which occupies the fine tract now used for golf. This tract will be sold as building lots on next Tuesday, August 7, and there is promise of many of the lots passing into the hands of builders of homes on that day. Charles Leebriek, manager of the real estate department, is having many inquiries as to these lots, but none are to be sold until next Tuesday.

To visitors who are looking into Winona realty values, the future of such holdings looks bright. With the number of people who have been to Winona so far this season double the number for the corresponding period of last year, it looks as if the demand for property will increase in years to come, rather than stand at the present price. There are a number of people now at the lake who say they regret they did not buy real estate here when they had an opportunity eight or ten years ago.

College Fraternity Banquet.

Dr. R. V. Hunter, of Buffalo, has retained the enthusiasm of his college days for Greek letter fraternity life. As soon as he reaches Winona something is "always doing" among the Greek letter people on the grounds.

This year is no exception. Dr. Hunter reached Winona Tuesday morning and today makes the announcement that there will be a banquet at the Winona Hotel on Friday evening, August 10. All members of college sororities and fraternities are expected to make arrangements to be present. A fine program of toasts and songs is being arranged. Each fraternity is expected to give a frat song. Every Greek may bring a "barbarian" as a guest. Particulars in regard to hour and cost of banquet tickets will be announced later.

Cooking That Is Genuine.

Over at the cooking school Miss Daisy Dean continues to show her growing class how to make the good things that appeal to both eye and taste. Juicy, fragrant apple pies, delicately browned cheese straws and chocolate pudding steamed were among the appetizing dainties prepared by the class of yesterday. Miss Daisy Dean's teaching is always popular, but she has the advantage of a large, airy class room, that is comfortable these warm mornings, even with the cooking range heated for the baking. It is claimed that the Americans are a nation of pie eaters. This assertion seems to be true from the number of women anxious to learn how best to make this popular dessert.

The Winona laundry is running every day and is equipped to do your work better than ever.

SOME LIGHT ON GENESIS.

But in color, hair is inclined to "sport," like a red rose bush which sometimes puts forth a white bloom. A child may have auburn hair, while the family from which it came may for generations have had black hair. David had red hair, but he came from a black haired family.

"The color of the eyes is of least importance in indicating race, because the eyes have many tendencies to change. There is no such thing as a black eye. It shades into brown. Even where the mixture of blood in a race is not great one may find many different colors in the eyes of a people."

Dr. Rogers said that the mixed races of people have through all time been the winning races. The masterful people are those with their blood most mixed. "If the races of men were ever more mixed than they are in this country today," Dr. Rogers said, "history says nothing about it."

This student of the Scriptures is a believer in the Darwin idea that the time was when there was but one human race, and he is led so to think by what ethnologists have found—that in whatever part of the world men may be found, they have as races the same form of anatomy and that they have the same medium, or average, pulse beat.

In looking over the names in the tenth chapter of Genesis, Dr. Rogers said, a complete list of the human races could not be found, for the chapter gives only the races who were known to the Hebrews. Many others were omitted. The chapter does not name the negro race. It speaks of Ham, who, Dr. Rogers said, was a white man, and not a negro. It briefly mentions Jephth, from whom present day white Americans came, and it discusses Shem by giving the bulk of the chapter to him.

"Migration is the most fascinating study in the history of the human race," the speaker said. "I do not mean emigration or immigration. The ancient world was full of great migrating movements of races of men, so great that we have nothing to compare with them today."

He spoke of the name Gomer, found in the tenth chapter of Genesis, and said it was the name of a race, not that of a man, which lived along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. The race became so great in numbers that it began to move, going slowly on its way through many centuries. It was known to the ancient Romans under one name, to the ancient Greeks under another. Finally it moved across Western Europe, and it is now represented by the people of Wales.

An opportunity to earn from $2 to $5 a day is offered to about ten young men or young ladies with good references. Inquire of Mr. Coe, between 9 and 11 a. m., at Bible School office, Room 4, Administration building.

Winona Flowers on China.

Members of Miss Ellen Eglehart's class have completed several pieces of china that are rich in decoration. The class is making a particular study of Winona flowers. They take a flower as a motive and each pupil executes a design in an original way. One vase finished this week is particularly handsome, and is done in soft purples, being a study of the rich gypsom bed found just below the hillside.

is begun in the primary grades and is done by both the boys and girls. Its prime motive is the teaching of number work.

As the child grows older, the embroidery shows combinations of stitches that are the result of steady application to the study of addition and subtraction.

The work is done in bright colors so that it is attractive to the child. There is very little difference between the work done in Norway and that of Denmark.

This work is as difficult of execution as is the work of the women of America. The children first draw the design and then embroider it in colors. The work

BOOK BINDERS AT WORK.

What Some Have Produced in Miss Knowlton's School.

In the arts and crafts department at College Hall several books have been handsomely bound by the students who are studying under Miss Lavina Knowlton. One bound by Miss Grace Heiskell, of Memphis, Tenn., is particularly beautiful. It is an album of views, all of which were taken by Miss Heiskell, bound in rich, soft, brown leather.

George Bicknell, of Sullivan, Ind., himself a writer of verse, has shown his artistic and poetic instinct by binding in levant morocco Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

Miss Leah Fletcher, of Denver, has completed the binding of two books. One is the "Avon of Shakespeare," in the soft green shades, while the other is bound in blue grass cloth with leather corners and back.

Miss Juanita Bennett, of Warsaw, is working at a volume of Elbert Hubbard's "Little Journeys," which when finished will be a handsome volume in green leather binding.

The sewing bench that is being used in the school is the same as the one used in the seventeenth century, while the cutting press is even older, being modeled after those used in the fifteenth century.

WINONA WOMAN'S CLUB.

Topics Discussed by Two Speakers Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Chester Birch, assisted by Mrs. Reddick, Mrs. Keller, Mrs. Lockwood and the Misses Noel, Ritchie and Arnold received the guests who attended the meeting of the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. There was a musical number by Charles March, and Miss Lillian B. Arnold, of the School of Librarians, read a paper on "Reading in the Home."

Miss Arnold placed the Bible as the first book in literature as it is in life, and said that Shakespeare and other great poets should be studied for culture as well as for pleasure.

Miss Anna Phelps talked on reference books and their value to a home, especially dictionaries and encyclopedias. A club woman, Miss Phelps said, should learn to seek her own reference books and not expect or ask a librarian to do it for her.

At the close of the program refreshments were served.

"The Relation of the Home to Amusements" will be the topic for the meeting of next week. A conference of former presidents of the club will be held soon to arrange for a stronger organization than now exists.

Ladies' hair shampooing, Turkish, electric and all kinds of baths, massage, etc. Ground floor Winona Hotel.

Every pair of shoes in the department offered at noticeable price reductions until Monday evening next. Richardson Dry Goods Co.

Foreign Mission Day.

Foreign Mission Day, on August 23, will be one of the important days of the Winona Bible Conference. Eight speakers will be on the program, as follows: Dr. Henry C. Mable, Boston, "The Bible—A Missionary Book;" Dr. Hunter Corbett, Cheefoo, China, "The Missionary, an Ambassador of Heaven;" Miss Julia Hand, of Japan; Dr. Charles E. Bratt, Chicago, "The Church—A Missionary Institution;" Dr. A. W. Halsey, New York, "The Pastor—A Missionary Propagandist;" Dr. J. O. Revis, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. F. N. Lynch, Wichita, will give a missionary lecture; Dr. F. O. Ballard, Indianapolis, "A View of World Wide Conditions."

Batteries—Rapp and Felkner; Grant and Hall.

Warsaw plays at Goshen tomorrow and New Paris at Winona Saturday.

Warsaw went to South Whitley, the home of pitcher Grant, who has been playing on the Warsaw team, and lost, 4 to 1. Grant pitched for South Whitley.

Tennis Tournament.

The annual tennis tournament at Winona will begin today at 1:15 p. m. The entries will be taken from 1 o'clock to that time, and, as soon as the drawings have been made, play will begin on the arbor, fountain and two postoffice courts. Among the outside entries are Reed, of Oberlin, Ohio; Snider, of Toledo; A. and H. Black, of Albion, Ind.; Manning and Bost, of Morrisonville, Ill. A number of men on the Park will also enter, among them Fulton, Elliott, Weer, Thomas, West, Parkhill and others. At least the preliminary rounds in singles and doubles and the first round in singles will be played. If possible, further rounds will be played. All players on the Park and elsewhere are invited to enter this tournament. Entry fees: Singles, 50c; doubles, 75c.

500,000 Babies
Are SacrificedState Official Declares Adulterated
Foods an Appalling Menace.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, the secretary of a state board made the assertion, and produced figures to prove it, that the death of nearly half a million little children in America last year was due to poisons administered in impure foods.

Welcome, indeed, is a food that is known to be pure and wholesome, rich in nutrition and good to eat,—so good that no other food can take its place. We refer to Malta-Vita, that delicious crisp, whole-wheat food. Among all the cereal foods we believe Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholly pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. It is free from any foreign sweetening agent or other adulterant, and is made in absolute cleanliness.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, and it's just as good three times a day. Containing every food element of the best white wheat and pure barley malt extract, it is intensely vitalizing and easily digested. Let your children have all the Malta-Vita they want and you need not fear for their health. Try some yourself with cream or fruit. You never tasted anything quite so good. All grocers, now 10 cents.
