CIVIC WEEK AT WINONA

Three Governors, Three Congressmen and Other Orators to Be Heard
From Assembly Platform.

Beginning with next Monday, there will during the following two months be a great array of American orators on the Winona Assembly platform, but it is doubtful if any week will hold greater general interest than will the first one. With three state Governors, three prominent Congressmen, and two eminent speakers on socialistic questions, the week will be a remarkable one. There will be diversions in the form of band concerts, the Fourth will be celebrated with a true spirit of patriotism, there will be a wild animal show for those who are young in years and in heart, and many other events.

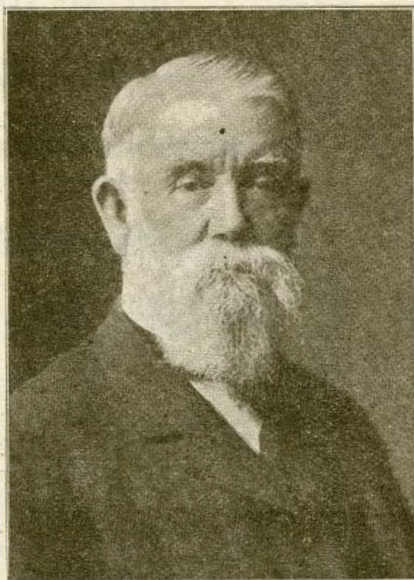

Since the proposition to give government financial aid to the merchant marine of the United States has been before the country, two men who have doubtless been the most prominent in dealing with the question in Congress have been Charles H. Grosvenor, Congressman from Ohio, and Champ Clark, Congressman from Missouri. General Grosvenor was from the beginning a strong champion of what came to be known as the ship subsidy bill, and Congressman Clark was one of the leaders of the forces which were arrayed against the measure. These two veterans of many an oratorical contest in Congress will meet again at Winona Lake next Monday afternoon, when they will open the Assembly's Civic Week with a debate on the same ship subsidy topic, General Grosvenor having his old place as champion of the proposition, and Champ Clark still in opposition. A. L. Brick, Congressman from Indiana, will introduce the speakers, and in the debate the intricacies involved in the merchant marine question will be made clear.

Among the gifted orators coming to Winona Lake next week, it is doubtful if any will arouse more interest than Dr. Frank Dixon, who will be heard on Tuesday afternoon. He is the youngest of the famous group of preacher-orators, father and three sons, who have gained national and international reputation. He was born in 1866, in North Carolina, and was graduated from the university of his native state in 1886. He was pastor of churches in West Virginia, California and Connecticut for fourteen years previous to 1902, and was distinguished for fearlessness and aggressiveness, for eloquence and magnetic power. For the past three years he has been lecturing constantly. His themes are vital. He stands at the storm-center of progressive thought, and speaks with authority. Every man and woman who hears him understands him. He has a personality that is the essence of eloquence. He is so simple, so direct, so captivating in his style, his audience grasps in a moment the results of years of careful toil. He is a bundle of nerves and "excitable gray matter," and opens a ism which has made America a colossal power. This is the burning question of the century. He has made it a life study, and that with the warmest sympathy for those who toil. He is now in the maturity of a splendid intellect; he has lived, struggled, suffered with the people; he has a burning message, and he knows how to deliver it. His truths are vivid as lightning flashes. He is eloquent, magnetic, thoughtful, and holds his audience from start to finish."

The Atlanta Constitution said of Dr. Dixon: "This member of a famous family is tall and slender, his appearance on the platform is striking, and his voice clear, distinct and far-reaching. Ideas bursting upon his hearers' brains as rays of light. Lecwhole battery of logic every time he opens his mouth. He has a message the world must hear. Not a sentence that is dull, not a moment that is not charged with electric power.

Dr. Dixon's brother, Thomas Dixon, Jr., who wrote "The Leopard's Spots," a well known book on the negro social question, pays this tribute to the speaker who comes to Winona:

"For years I have urged my brother, Frank Dixon, to enter the Lyceum field. His lecture on 'The Man Against the Mass' is of marvelous power. Against the spirit embodied in our national institutions are leagued the forces of economic reaction which threaten to change the character of our government, unsettle the home tradition, and test the moral fiber of that Anglo-Saxon individual-ture of rare merit, delivered with rare eloquence."

Many educational authorities also endorse this young Southerner. Dr. G. H. Ferris, of New Haven, Conn., says of him:

"His keen and incisive style and his mastery of the art of epigrammatic utterance are backed by a personality that is the essence of eloquence. He possesses the true oratorical gift. I have often heard him when there would come over the audience one of those moments in which each man can hear his neighbor's heart beat! I have never listened to him when I did not regret the brevity of his address."

THIRD DAY OF MISSIONS

A Number of Helpful Speakers Were Heard by Women Attending the Summer School.

The third day of the Summer School of Missions yesterday was marked by generous attendance and interest. A busy day for the school began at 8:45, Mrs. W. J. Darby, of Evansville, being the chairman for the morning.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Kate P. Shaffer, of Delaware, Ohio, member of the Lutheran board, who spoke of the great benefits to be derived from a meeting like this and of the responsibility of each who receives the blessing.

After singing several hymns the entire audience repeated the Lord's prayer.

Mrs. Wells was introduced and she called upon Mrs. Montgomery to lead in prayer. Mrs. Wells read a letter from Miss Sharp, the permanent chairman, who is detained at Chicago by sickness. Miss Sharp sent greetings to the women assembled and felt that it was God's will that she is not here.

The Bible study was opened by reading from the fourth chapter of Deuteronomy.

Mrs. Wells spoke of the exalted position of America today. Each woman, whether she wishes to vote or not, must try to influence legislation that will benefit the islanders. Teach the young men—start when they are two years old—this is every mother's duty, Mrs. Wells said.

"If God wants us for His inheritance, we must make that inheritance worth something. God is a consuming fire, and it is the great desire of every Christian to have sin consumed."

Mrs. Wells spoke of the solemn promise parents take when they present children for baptism, and of how few of them fulfil the promise. It is the exceptional mother who prays at night with her child, and family prayers are about unheard of.

From the eighth chapter of Ezra, Mrs. Wells drew her second lesson. God wants us to take great strides, but we are satisfied by "inching" along. One should be ashamed to go to any other but God in time of trouble. Not only as individuals but as a nation we must turn to God. Even as Job sings the praises of the Lord, so must we.

From the 36th chapter of Isaiah, Mrs. Wells taught the lesson of opportunity. "I will give you two thousand horses if you will put riders on them." One need not fear riding too hard, for God's strength will sustain. "May I love the Lord more and serve Him better." If this prayer is honestly prayed we will not hesitate and insist on a white horse when God offers a brown one to ride.

Before beginning her lecture of the morning Mrs. Montgomery explained the benefits of the reference library which is to be purchased for five dollars. She urged the women to ask for it to be placed in their home libraries.

"In this year's course of study," said Mrs. Montgomery, "there are two home mission lessons, so the women who object to foreign missions will be sadly twisted, as they should be.

"The Hawaiian Islands—a home missionary lesson—are ten in number and in mid-ocean. The climate is much better than other of the South Sea islands, there being no extremes of heat or cold. The natives belong to the Polynesian races, being stalwart and handsome like the Samoans.

"Feudal system existed in the early days, and such was the contrast between royalty and common people that many people thought them two distinct races. Their religious system was quite intricate, one of darkness and terror, when all their surroundings were pleasant. It was something more than the environment."

Moral conditions were bad when first known by Europeans. They had no word for chastity or weather. When first visited by the drunken, riotous sailors, the condition became worse and women threw off all restrictions. The birth rate among the natives was very low, caused, as Mrs. Montgomery showed, by the vices of the people. The death rate was very high. Any race is open to ravishes of disease when the disease is new. Smallpox and other diseases to which we are immune nearly swept these natives away. But now that the islanders have passed through the first epidemic it need not follow that the race must die out. Sanitary conditions have improved and with this there is hope for a higher morality.

Do not let us judge too harshly these women of the sea—rather had we better say "neither do I condemn you. Go and sin no more."

Says Dr. Scudder, an eminent teacher of Honolulu: "There is no nobler man than the Hawaiian." Mrs. Montgomery thinks the outcome of it all will be a blending of the race that will produce a new people, strong in many points. She spoke of the new race now growing—children with Chinese fathers and Hawaiian mothers. This mingling of blood has produced good results, while the children of American fathers and Hawaiian mothers are weak and nervous.

The new Chinese now on the Hawaiian islands—born there and so our citizens—will settle the Chinese question in our country.

Captain Cooke, who discovered these islands, remained here 100 days. In Mrs. Montgomery's opinion Captain Cooke was just a man of his day—willing to give himself up to all the debaucheries of the island."

Vancouver, who visited the islands later made an entirely different impression on the natives. He was ahead of his day, and was eager in starting missionary work on the islands.

When missionaries first came, the people did not want spiritual aid, but in the thirties the Hawaiian island became a Christian nation. Then came the constitutional changes and all the feudal customs were swept aside.

In speaking of the persons who object to their minister preaching anything but the pure gospel, Mrs. Montgomery was loudly applauded. "What we want," said Mrs. Montgomery, "is the pure gospel applied to twentieth century life."

Friday's lesson will be on the Fiji and the New Hebrides islands.

The third period of the morning was given to a study of method. From far off South Dakota came Miss A. E. McCauley with a message of cheer which she gave to the women in a most impressive manner. Miss McCauley spoke on "Gifts, Legacies and Annuities." She said God spoke to Job out of a whirlwind, and he speaks just as distinctly to us today. What are we going to take to the waiting ones at home? They ask for bread, shall we give them a stone? It is ours to have a hand. What answer must we make to the Lord?

Our average gifts to foreign missions is forty cents a year. Can we afford to be so slothful in business?

Mrs. S. E. Hurlbert, of Evanston, Ill., a member of the Congregational Board, prepared the next paper, which was read by Miss Star, of Chicago. She told in an interesting manner how best to raise money in women's societies. She suggested many new methods, but money is sure to come if the heart is right and one has the great love of sisterhood that should animate all missionary workers.

The morning session closed with a short prayer service.

The Round Table.

The interest in the round table meetings is increasing; yesterday afternoon's session having the largest crowd of the week. Mrs. R. H. Pooley, of Chicago, a member of the Methodist Board, presided and most cleverly answered many questions that were asked her in regard to the work of the morning, "How to raise money?" This is the cry all over the land. "The money," says Mrs. Pooley, "would come easily did all accept the fatherhood of God."

tient student and careful in his analysis of his theme, and so simple, so direct, so captivating in his style, his audience grasps in a moment the results of his months of careful toil.”

J. M. St. John, county superintendent public instruction, Westmoreland, Kan.—“He held his audience spellbound with his eloquence and fruitful thought. He is a man of logic and wit, the most fascinating speaker ever heard in our town.”

John S. Lyon, D.D., Holyoke, Mass.—“Frank Dixon unquestionably stands in the first rank of platform orators. His wide reading, brilliant satire, keen wit and his fine power of analysis, joined with clear strong, breezy thought and compelling logic, give him the mastery of an audience.”

Henry Clarke, Bristol, Conn.—“His logic never stumbles. His intellectual independence always opens up new vistas. As an orator he is eloquent, striking, dramatic, forceful.”

Prof. J. S. Carroll, Dunbar, Pa.—“One of the strongest lectures before the Fayette County Teachers' Institute that was ever heard in Uniontown. His fun is of the funniest kind.”

The Fourth of July orator at Winona Lake will be Capt. Jack Crawford, known as the poet scout. He is one of the picturesque characters of the time, and he is a living memory of the old days when the frontier of the Far West was wild and seemed to be untamable. He has been an Indian fighter, a scout for wagon trains and other path finders, and he clings to the buckskin apparel and long curly hair which marked the hunter and soldier of fortune back when the West was young. As a story teller, Captain Jack has few equals.

Newspapers generally speak in praise of the power and oratory of U. S. Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, who comes to Winona to speak on next Thursday. The Washington correspondent of the Milwaukee Sentinel said of him when Mr. LaFollette was in Congress:

“The recent speech of Congressman LaFollette has attracted much attention here. A prominent Republican said to your correspondent today: ‘I had the pleasure of listening from the gallery to LaFollette's speech last Saturday. That young man gets the attention of the house when he talks. Usually, you know, when a set speech is in progress a majority of the members read the newspapers or write letters. Mr. LaFollette served on the Ways and Means. He is a keen lawyer and good representative. Mr. McKinley said the other day that LaFollette had written more of the new tariff bill than any other man on the committee, which is doubtless the case, for the ceaseless toil of the little Wisconsin member night and day is a proverbial fact around the House.’”

Harper's Weekly, in October, 1902, said of Mr. LaFollette: “‘Badger,’ in its suggestion of never giving up, is well associated with the present Governor of the state of Wisconsin. Naturalists describe that animal as one which is harmless if not abused, but which resists obstinately ‘till overpowered and after a brief rest is ready for another struggle.’ This is certainly descriptive of the Governor, whom the people in their affection delight to call ‘Bob.’

“One must admire his courage, his integrity, his unimpeachable character and his unfatiguing devotion to his conscious duty. He is the type of man whom it is satisfying to have coming to the top in politics.”

S. H. Clark, dean of Department of Public Speaking, University of Chicago.—“Governor LaFollette is an orator with a mission. He comes to the lecture platform not to entertain, but to instruct; not to pander, not to give the people what they want, but what they need. His purpose is to arouse and stimulate the citizens of this country to a sense of their political obligations and of their power. Governor LaFollette has earned the right to speak as few others have earned it, and his utterances have therefore an authoritativeness that cannot exist in the case of the mere theorist. Besides the subject matter, there is in Governor LaFollette's manner and delivery a poise and bearing, a power and magnetism possessed only by those who are born orators. I have no hesitation in saying that the advent of Governor LaFollette on the lyceum platform is one of the strongest additions that have come to it for a score of years.”

Seattle (Wash) Press.—“One of the lightest weights physically in the House is R. M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin. His intellectuals, as with these other notable men, vary, however, inversely as his stature and weight. He is a member of the Ways and Means committee, and he is the youngest man ever appointed to that committee with the single exception of the Ohio Napoleon, Mr. McKinley, who was a few months younger than LaFollette when he first served on Ways and Means. LaFollette was born in a log house in Wisconsin in 1855, and has risen to his eminence by faithful work.”

The Sunday Telegraph (Wisconsin).—“Mr. LaFollette is not only an honor to that district, but to the state and nation; and he is growing more rapidly today than at any time during his public service. He is brainy; his brain is well disciplined; his heart is in the right place; no one questions his honesty; he is a tireless worker; he is loyal to his district, his state and the nation, and during the two terms he has been in Congress he has not made even the shadow of a mistake. Webster and Clay had been in public service longer than LaFollette has before they stood as high in the esteem of the people as Wisconsin's Third district stands.”

On Friday afternoon of next week,

J. Frank Hanly, Governor of Indiana will speak at the Winona auditorium, and the occasion promises to be one which will attract many people from over Northern Indiana. It is doubtful if there is in the nation a Governor who is more persistent and determined to enforce the laws as he finds them upon the books than Mr. Hanly. He has done more to clear the state of illegal Sabbath desecrations, to suppress the liquor traffic than any Governor this state has had in many years. Governor Hanly has pointed the way to higher qualities of citizenship. He came from humble origin, but is an impressive example of what a man may do for himself and a commonwealth which he represents.

Governor Hanly has also obtained attention by his refusal to countenance misdeeds in public office, and his influence in this direction will be a forceful one among political parties in Indiana for many years to come.

Eugene V. Debs, who has given his best years and efforts to the advancement of the socialistic cause in this country, will be the second Civic Week speaker on Socialism, appearing on Friday night. All who hear Mr. Debs and his arguments in favor of socialism do not agree with him, but they are impressed with his sincerity. He is one of the great speakers who has come out of the ranks of labor.

Governor Folk, of Missouri, will bring Civic Week affairs to a climax on Saturday afternoon, July 7, when he will speak at Winona. He is another Governor who would not tolerate in public office a man who would yield to temptation and abuse public confidence. It was the power of Folk which reached into the municipal affairs of St. Louis and drove out of control a band of men who had long pillaged the public treasury. His force for cleanliness in political and civil life has brought results in many quarters. His discussion at Winona will be of questions of public policy.

The lake is eighty-two feet deep in its deepest part and the students at the Biological Station will try to determine what fish, if any, inhabit the deeper parts of Winona waters. The formal permit to use nets for this purpose has just arrived at the station, and this notice is given that students who will be seen setting and tending the nets are not engaged in illegal practices.

IN WINONA'S SOCIAL REALM

House-Frau Tea.

In honor of Miss Edna Thompson, whose marriage to Claude Mellville will take place next Tuesday, Mrs. Zartmann entertained eight young women at a haus-frau tea yesterday. Each guest took some article suitable for housekeeping. The color scheme of green and white was carried out in a beautiful manner in the dining room where lunch was served. The place cards, of booklet form, were of green and white, and contained the entertainments of the afternoon. The centerpiece was a foy tub of water lilies. The favors, pieces of toy furniture, were drawn by means of green ribbons stretched from the centerpiece to each plate. The cake contained a ring, a thimble and a dime. Miss Ella Toy received the first, Mr. Zartmann the second, and Miss Fanny Toy the dime. The hemming of tea towels was one of the entertainments of the afternoon. Another was that of writing answers to one of the following questions: How to stay young? How to make and keep cake? How to make a bed? How to avoid family jars? How to raise chickens? How to do the family wash? How to keep your husband happy? How to make bread? How to keep the house clean? and How to keep the weekly expense inside of 98 cents. Many wise and otherwise answers were written, which were then bound into a book the cover bearing the "title." ## FEARS ARE SET AT REST

Warsaw-Goshen Road Will Be Operated Same As Any Other Passenger Carrying Railway.

There has been more or less apprehension lately upon the part of Goshen people as to whether the Warsaw-Goshen line would be operated on Sunday. The Goshen News-Times says "Harry S. Dickey, manager of the Winona Interurban line, was in Goshen Tuesday night, and he ridiculed the discussion that is being stirred up as to whether the Winona line would run on Sunday." He said: "We are busy completing the line at the present time, but just as soon as it is ready for business, it will run just the same as any other railroad. Yes, it will carry passengers on Sunday."

"The Winona people have never run a car from Warsaw to Winona on Sunday and it is probable that this order will not be changed. The majority of the public knows that Winona is not on the Winona line proper, but lies east of Warsaw and is connected to the Winona line by a spur with a loop at the end. When the lines projected are completed, it will be possible to run cars from South Bend to Indianapolis through Warsaw and never touch Winona. The Winona Interurban line, if it forms part of the system of electric lines now being constructed, which it surely does, will of necessity be compelled to run on Sunday."

LAZIEST PEOPLE ON EARTH.

Mrs. E. W. Brainerd Says She Saw Them While on Trip to Jamaica.

Mrs. E. W. Brainerd, of Lincoln, Ill., is a guest at the Marshall Memorial building. Mrs. Brainerd, who is the missionary president of her Presbytery, lately returned from Jamaica, where she went for her health. Mrs. Brainerd returns fully restored, and loud in her praises of the delightful climate of Jamaica. "The natives of Jamaica are the laziest people on earth," said Mrs. Brainerd. "They absolutely refuse to work, but the government brings natives from the East Indies who are industrious and rather skilful. They save money on 25 cents a day—the maximum wages. The banana trade, which was worked up by Capt. Baker, of Boston, is a growing industry."

Mrs. Brainerd spoke of the fine hotels erected by the American Fruit Company. She also gave an interesting item in regard to the expense of crossing from Jamaica to Cuba. The distance is but 90 miles and it costs $25. To cross Cuba by rail will take $30, and if one wishes to go to Florida from Jamaica it is cheaper to go to New York by boat and return than to cross the islands.

Mrs. Brainerd is delighted with Winona and will remain some time at the Marshall Home.

Pictures of Japan.

One of the pleasing diversions of the School of Missions sessions was a lecture at the auditorium last night by Miss Flora Starr, of Chicago. Miss Starr together with other members of the mission board which she represents, made a tour of Japan some months ago to see what progress was making in different lines of mission work in that country. By means of lantern views she carried her audience la stevening over the same route which she traveled. Many of the pictures were in colors, and with an entertaining speaker as a guide, many phases of Japanese life were pointed out. The pictures shown, Miss Starr said, were typical of the work being done by all mission boards of the country in Japan. The audience was one of the largest of the week.

Mrs. Margarette Merris will be with her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Fristo, at the Margaretta cottage.

Mrs. C. Taylor and daughter, Miss Mabel, of Oak Park, arrived last evening. Miss Taylor is an '06 graduate of the Western College at Oxford, Ohio.
