CIRCUS AT BOYS' CAMP

All Sorts of Feats and Big Menagerie
in Woods—Parade in Park
This Morning.

Today will be circus day in the Winona Boys' City. There will be a performance at 2:30 and another at 7:30 p. m., and each will close with a concert. The circus parade, in which all the "kids" in the mimic municipality will participate, will move through the park about 10 o'clock, headed by the Salt Lake Juvenile band. It will not be a parade of gilded wagons and iron cages, no outriders or gaily attired women on prancing horses will appear, but it will be a parade worth seeing—a pageantry organized by the boys themselves.

The circumstances will be brimful of good features. A score of juvenile clowns will be the fun makers. Creator's (?) band will supply the music, with a long-haired conductor waving the baton. There will be trapeze an horizontal bar performers, acrobats and other sawdust talent in profusion, for every boy in the camp who can "skin a cat" or tie himself in a contortionist's knot will give some sort of feat. A high diver will make a startling plunge and "a slide for life" will be made by another boy from a tree top to the ground.

The circus will be especially rich in menagerie wealth. The boys have robbed the jungles south of Winona lake of all the wild animals they could scare up, and they will have in the show many monsters that the students of nature in Winona park never heard of. One of the prizes that has been captured is a wild man from Africa, ferocious and blood-thirsty.

Yesterday was one of extraordinary activity in the camp in the Winona woods. The work of the circus has been divided up, with many boys for each department, and there has been for some days some "tall hustling" to get all in readiness.

Bethany Hall was busier than a beehive all day yesterday. About thirty young women were plying their needles and three sewing machines were humming in their industry. The clowns of the circus slipped in and out of the place, hurrying away to Warsaw many times during the day to buy gaudy material for costumes. The women were taking as much interest in getting the youngsters ready for the circus as the boys. Charles Hahn, who has charge of the clowns, was a little busier than any one else. With a tape line he measured the "kids" for their apparel. "Fit" was not the point striven for. A large amount of needle work was accomplished by the sewers, and better progress would have been made but for the fact that one clown's outfit had to be made a second time.

Word of the circus has gone over Indiana, and here is what an editorial writer of the Indianapolis News said about it:

"Readers of the News who have been following the development of the Boyville experiment at Winona will not be surprised to learn that a circus is one of the early features on the program. Boyville, it should be understood, is an attempt to run a summer camp of boys, by boys and for boys. Under proper regulation by adults, the experiment may have good educational results. Boys know much more than they are generally credited with knowing, and it is a good idea to give them a chance to exercise their superabundant knowledge and vitality.

"Of course, a camp of boys under boy government, like that at Winona, could not run long without a circus. In fact, there are few towns where boys exist under normal conditions that do not have juvenile circuses. The average boy takes to a circus performance as naturally as he does to fishing, swimming, skating or shooting at birds. He is generally able to do a stunt himself and he knows several other boys, each of whom can do one. It may be standing on the head, "skinning the cat," walking on the hands, turning a handspring or a double handspring, or what not. Perhaps it is some special act of contortion, whistling in an unusual way or imitating animal sounds. It is a poor town that does not furnish enough talent to get up a boy circus. Any old barn will do for a tent, and a few pieces of carpet will supply the drop curtain and scenery. The admission fee is not exorbitant, perhaps a few pins or a cent, but then the expenses of the show are not great, as none of the performers receives pay. A boys' circus is a natural and instructive expression of a boy nature and art.

"The circus at Winona ought to be a great success, because there are so many bright, talented boys to choose from. There must be many boys there who can do unusual stunts and if the spirit of emulation is brought into play, a very interesting performance may be expected. In show parlance, it will probably be a concentrated concatenation of audacious acts and of fantastic features and popularized performances."

No Admission Fee to Circus.

Regular Winona tickets will admit holders to either performance of the Boys City circus today. There will be a voluntary silver offering taken at the grounds for the extension of the Boys' City movement, but no fee will be charged at the gate.

LAST Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

Two Speakers From Pittsburg Will Be Heard Tomorrow Evening.

The Young Men's Christian Association, after the most successful summer it has known at Winona, will hold its final service for the season tomorrow evening, from 7:45 to 8:30. The meeting will be in Bethany Hall. The speakers will be Howard Heinz and Dr. W. O. Wright, of Pittsburg, and special music will be given. Mr. Heinz is manager of the factories of the H. J. Heinz company and is a forceful speaker to young men. Dr. Wright is a worker among the lowly boys of Pittsburg and has been a keen observer among young men.

Ralph C. Norton has had charge of the Y. M. C. A. meetings this summer and through his efforts not only some choice speakers have been heard, but the attendance has been about double that of any other year.

Excursionists From Fort Wayne.

The employees of S. F. Bowser & Co., of Fort Wayne, together with their friends and the Packard band, had possession of Winona Park yesterday. The crowd, about 1,500, was out for an August holiday and enjoyed it in full. The visitors rode on the steamer, swam in the lake, and early in the afternoon teams of the company's employees played baseball, while there were many participants in the athletic contests. The excursionists returned home last evening, filling a train of twenty-nine cars.

Piano-Violin Recital.

Brahm Van den Berg, pianist, and Lewis R. Blackman, violinist, both of the Winona Summer School of Music, will give a recital at the auditorium this afternoon at 4 p. m. The numbers will be from Schutt, Franck and Rubinstein.

CULVER TROOP DRILLS

Cavalry on Black Horses Maneuver
Before Large Crowd on the Winona Athletic Field.

The black horse troop of Culver Military Academy gave its striking drills before perhaps 3,000 people at the Winona athletic field yesterday afternoon and it afforded one of the pleasing diversions of the summer. The Culver institution has for several seasons sent its young men to Winona, always giving a very attractive feature, and giving evidence of the capability of the officers in charge of the hundreds of the youth of the country through summer and winter at Lake Maxinkuckee. For two summers the Culver sailors sailed their craft on the Winona waters, pitched their tents on the shores, and fought strenuous sham battles in Winona Park to the immense satisfaction of many thousand people who looked on. The black horse troop, showing for the first time what it could do at Winona yesterday afternoon, was less demonstrative than the sham fighters, but was none the less pleasing. For an hour the forty cavalymen, with clanking sabres and in gray uniforms, rode their horses, each animal as black and glossy as anthracite, in picturesque movements, the big crowd frequently applauding the maneuvers.

The troop was in the command of Capt. Robert Rossow, of the United States Army, who issued his commands through a bugler, and the movements over the broad field were made with precision, the troop moving at times in fours, again wheeling into a solid front, sometimes in a trot, often at full dash. The cavalymen rode with grace and skill and their mounts to understand what was expected of them as much as did the young men in the saddles.

The troop left Lake Maxinkuckee yesterday, riding across country, with a baggage wagon along, and last night went into camp at Bourbon. The rest of the forty-mile journey was made yesterday morning, the troop arriving at Winona in good condition before noon. While at Winona their camp bears the name of Major L. G. Signalist, one of the commanding officers of the academy, who heretofore has come to Winona with his military organizations.

The troop will start for Lake Maxinkuckee today. In a short time the

UNITY OF SCRIPTURES

Demands That We Acquaint Ourselves With the Entire Bible to Get Its Benefits.

Dr. Palmer led in the Bible study at the 11 o'clock hour yesterday. Much of the hour was taken up with making important announcements for the summer training school and giving the results of the written test of a few days ago.

Slips were passed to the audience on which the outline of Dr. Palmer's talk was printed. Dr. Palmer emphasized that this week his aim has been to conduct a helpful school at the 11 o'clock hour.

"The Opening of the Scriptures by the Scriptures" was Dr. Palmer's theme. Just as the body is a living unity and one part necessary to the other, so is the Bible a complete unity. Dr. Palmer said that this unity was shown in the incompleteness at the end of each book, in the topics not dealt with in places, and in the unity between the Old and New Testament.

By the use of a blackboard the speaker made plain the use of marginal references and of an unabridged concordance.

Under examples of the method of study Dr. Palmer spoke on biographies, books of the Bible, chapters and verses. In a study of biographies Dr. Palmer would have one study David in Psalms, Solomon in Proverbs, Paul in his letters, and Peter in the Gospels and Acts.

Special attention was given to Hebrews, Jonah, Ezra, Leviticus and Lamentations in the study of the books while summaries, illustrations, explanations and comparisons were the headings under the special chapter study. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Palmer met all who had any suggestions to make in regard to the Bible study for next year.

This Bible school is very dear to the heart of Dr. Palmer and he hopes that the day may come that all may come that all may enter into the benefits of this school without paying a tuition fee. "No matter," said Dr. Palmer, "who has charge of the Bible school for next year, it is my purpose to gather all suggestions and file them away for the director of next year's school."

There will be an 11 o'clock Bible hour today, which is unusual for a Winona Saturday program.

Woman's Missionary Meeting Today.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary meeting will be held at the Westminster this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Granstaff and Mrs. Ross have arranged the program. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

What you can get at other stores you can get of us cheaper. Kingery & Myers.

DECORATIONS WILL BE CHEAP.

Pick Out Your Boat and Get Ready for the Water Carnival on Venitian Night.

Be sure and hand your name to the chairman of the Venitian night committee if you anticipate decorating a boat for the great water carnival. The boats for that day are free and decorations will be for sale at cost. Do not forget to provide lanterns to decorate your cottages for that night. For ten cents you can purchase three lanterns. Nice long candles that will burn for four hours for sale at one cent each. The bunting, 27 inches wide, will be sold for five cents a yard.

It is earnestly requested that those who want boats should go to the boat house, select the boat they want, and give their name and number of boat to the boatman.

METHODISTS AT WINONA.

Meeting to Discuss New Building Will Be Held August 20.

On August 20 the directors and officers of the proposed Methodist building will meet at the Westminster hotel in an effort to complete arrangements for the new structure.

W. W. J. Vigus has sent word to all interested and hopes to have many of the influential Methodists from over the state present at the meeting. The site for the new building is on the ground adjoining the Westminster, or Presbyterian building.

Mr. Snyder, who for many years was the secretary of the Island Park Assembly, is now identified with Winona and has brought hundreds of Methodists to Winona Lake. Rome City was always known as a Methodist Chautauqua and now that there is no assembly program most of the Methodist cottage holders at Rome City have nothing to hold them. Sunday excursions are being run to Rome City and the Methodists who wish a different environment and a religious atmosphere are glad to unite in building a permanent home where there is no fear of Sunday not being observed. There are about as many Methodist preachers now at Winona as there are Presbyterian and all these will unite and help to organize Methodism to build the proposed $50,000 building.

MANY HOLD POSITIONS

Graduates of Winona Technical Library School Have Little Difficulty in Obtaining Employment.

Miss Cornelia Niles, of El Paso, Texas, a graduate of the Winona Technical Institute Library School at Indianapolis, has just been appointed cataloguer in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C., having successfully passed the civil service examination.

Since leaving the library school last year, Miss Niles has acted as substitute in the public library at Nashville, Tenn., where her family resides.

Other library school graduates are filling the following positions:

Nina Almond, '06, cataloguer, Indiana University; Grace Burton, '07, librarian, Public Library, Bloomfield; Ethel Clelland, '06, cataloguer, Legislative Reference Department, Indiana State Library; Agnes L. Cox, '06, Lutheran Theological Library, Philadelphia; Alice Griffith, '06, Public Library, Indianapolis; Daisy Grubbs, librarian, Public Library, Martinsville; Lillian E. Henley, '06, acting librarian, Shelbyville; Nannie C. Jayne, '06, acting librarian, Knightstown; Florence L. Jones, '07, School Reference Department, Indianapolis Public Library; Jessie Masden, '06, librarian, Public Library, Piqua, Ohio; Martha Grace Smith, '06, Public Library, Fort Wayne; Edith Trimble, '06, librarian, Public Library, Kokomo.

With the increasing interest in library organization all over the country, it will not be long before library boards will demand of librarians seeking appointments that they have thorough preparation, as given in the library schools, which insures to the tax supported libraries the most efficient service.

JUVENILE BAND CONCERT

Draws a Large Crowd Who Are Well Pleased With Music—Judge Brown's Remarks.

A large audience was present at the auditorium last night to hear the concert by the Salt Lake City Band. The program was a pretentious one for a juvenile organization, but was rendered in a manner which would have done credit to older musicians of good ability. The numbers met with hearty applause, including several encores. In the intermission Judge Willis Brown gave an interesting talk about the progress of the work at the Winona Boys' City. He said the experience already gained justified the statement that this work among the boys was the birth of a great movement which would grow rapidly and be the means of winning many boys to a clean square Christly life. The main object of the work being done at the Boys' City was to demonstrate to the boys that a boy could have a better time and get along the best in every way by being on the square and living the life Christ would have him to live.

Today is the big circus at the Boys' City. There will be a parade at 11 o'clock. The circus performances will be given at 2:30 and 7:30 this afternoon and evening. There will be no admission fee, but a silver offering will be taken for the benefit of the Boys' City, to be devoted to the spread of the movement. It is hoped every Winonian will turn out and show their interest in and give their encouragement to the boys.

FIRST SONG RECITAL.

Sale of Seats to Hear Schumann-Heink Begins at 8 This Morning.

The sale of reserved seats for the first song recital which Mme. Schumann-Heink will give at Winona Lake, August 13, opens at the ticket office in the Administration building at 8 o'clock this morning. The two center sections on the lower floor of the auditorium and the first two rows of the balcony are reserved, the seats being twenty-five cents each. The other reserved seats will be ten cents each. Not over twelve seats will be sold to one person.

Those holding tickets that are marked "not good at the auditorium August 13 and 16" may obtain single admission tickets by presenting their season tickets at the office in the administration building and paying 50 cents for each of the Schumann-Heink days. This will not include reserved seats.

The sale of seats for the second recital, to be given on Friday, August 17, will open at the administration building on next Wednesday morning, the same conditions prevailing. Both sales will be in the charge of Byron Lafollette.

Mme. Schumann-Heink will sing ten of twelve songs at each of the recitals, not including encores, and will be accompanied by a pianist. This famous singer possesses two voices—a deep, sonorous contralto, and a powerful, ringing mezzo-soprano—both of remarkable quality. Her interpretation is said to be of such character that her auditors may be ignorant alike of the beauties of classical composition or the tongue in which they are sung and get full measure of enjoyment. To those who are familiar with the works of the great music masters, she is an inspiration. It is said that her voice, on her tour last winter, brought in nearly $100,000, the largest sum ever earned by a contralto and equaled by few sopranos in a year.

Winona Who's Who

Mrs. Milton S. Lamoreaux, of Chicago, special lecturer in the psychology of childhood and pedagogy in the Sunday School Training School, is superintendent of the primary department of the Baptist church of which she is a member in Chicago. Since early girlhood Mrs. Lamoreaux has been a teacher and worker in the Sunday school and it has now been ten years since she has given herself entirely to her work. Mrs. Lamor-eaux has no children so gives to all children the instruction and inspiration of a good teacher. Mrs. Lamor-eaux was a personal friend of the late Dwight Moody, who years ago heard Mrs. Lamoreaux give a primary lesson in Northfield during the meeting of the Sunday school convention at Boston. The same afternoon Mr.
Moody called her out of a mass-meeting and told her that God had specially fitted her for this primary work and that she should not be turned away from it. Mr. Moody spoke rightly and though Mrs. Lamoreaux, in her modesty, will take no credit for things she does yet those associated with her in the Sunday school work tell of her great success as a teacher.

Mrs. Grace M. Pebbles, has charge of the metal and leather work of the Arts and Crafts school. In the display of leather work, there is a pocketbook valued at $20. It is hand-made, mounted in brass, with a rose design modeled and colored on the leather, which is of a rich mixed brown color.
The leather book covers are another attractive feature of the display. One, that has been used for four years, is of unusual beauty. The design is that of a landscape. The color, having become richer by use, is now a deep mottled brown-green. It suggests that peculiar oldness that is so much sought after. In speaking of her work, Mrs. Pebbles told of the ease of the work, and especially of the short time it takes to become a skilled craftsman in this line of art. In the metal work attractive and useful articles are made in the pierced, hammered and etched copper and brass.
Also elementary jewelry is made.

Miss Flora Miller, who has charge of the motto stand, has been selected by Miss Lucy Page Gaston to superintend the Anti-Cigarette League work at this place. Miss Miller has had a large experience with boy life in twelve years in the public schools of this state, and many years a teacher in Sunday school. She also organized the first Anti-Cigarette League in Indianapolis. On account of other duties Miss Miller cannot give as much time as the work deserves, but she desires to see as many of the boys and girls as possible at the motto stand, where they will find a supply of pledge cards and A. C. L. literature.
She plans to secure at least three hundred pledges this summer and trusts the parents of the park will be interested in saving boys from the habit.

Conservatory of Music.

The Winona Conservatory of Music is better equipped this summer than ever before to furnish instruction on the pipe organ and opportunities for practice. During the year a fine, two-manual, pedal-bass Liszt organ has been purchased for the especial use of pupils, affording an unusual opportunity to become fitted to hold the position of church organist.
For further particulars inquire at Information building.

Demonstration Saturday Morning.

The School of Physical Education will give a demonstration Saturday morning at 9 a. m. All interested in observing the work are cordially invited.

The Methodist church, of Milford, gave an excursion over the Winona interurban line yesterday, which brought about 150 to the park. It was in the charge of Rev. J. A. Bailey, pastor of the church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS

Now Attending the Sessions of the Summer Training School in Raikes
Hall—Today's Program.

Today will be one of the best days of the Training School for Sunday School Workers. This school opened yesterday with the largest enrollment of any first session in the four years that the school has been conducted at Winona.

At the 9 o'clock hour this morning Mrs. Baldwin talks on work in the primary department. At 9:30 Mrs. Lamoreaux speaks on "The Life of the Beginners." Mr. Burnie gives at 10 o'clock a model training lesson, while Dr. Moninger speaks on "The Master Teacher Teaching" at the 11 o'clock hour.

Mr. Moninger will speak again at 4 o'clock. The meetings of the training school are being held at Raikes Hall and are of great general interest. Among the instructors of the school are Mrs. Milton S. Lamoreaux, of Chicago, who is special lecturer on the psychology of childhood, Rev. Herbert Moninger, of Cincinnati, who is the Bible editor of the Standard Publishing Co., and Mr. R. E. Diffendorfer, of New York, who is the Sunday school secretary of the young people's missionary movement.

THE CULVER TROOP DRILLS

cavalrymen and sailors of Culver will go to the Jamestown exposition, the full force numbering nearly 400, where they will give exhibition drills on land and water.

When William McKinley was inaugurated President, a company of his Cleveland admirers, mounted on black horses, escorted him in the inaugural procession. The horses came into the possession of Culver, which has since expanded the original idea by the adoption of U. S. cavalry tactics. Only one horse of the original forty is now in the troop and twenty of the animals went into the Culver service a short time ago.

The following are the orders for the troop today:

The Boys' and Girls' Club will give a floral parade and battle of flowers on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Salt Lake juvenile Band will lead the parade and prizes will be given for the best float, and also a prize for the best individual contest.

Mr. Schaeffer has this in charge and expects to make Wednesday afternoon stand out in capital letters in the week's program.

RECITAL MET WITH MUCH FAVOR

Mrs. Burr is a Finished and Gifted Reader and a Genius in the Portrayal of Child Character.

Mrs. Grace Pierce Burr, of Newcastle, Ind., gave a recital yesterday afternoon that in many ways exceeded in excellence anything in that line that has been on the Winona program for years. Mrs. Burr's charm is her naturalness and she shows excellent judgment in the selection of her readings.

Mrs. Burr is a real genius in child character delineations, and as the larger half of the recital was made up of these child selections the recital was of necessity a success.

Mrs. Burr opened her recital with the Aldrich story of Pauline Pavlovna. Then child story followed child story, many being taken from the child verse of James Whitcomb Riley. "The New Baby," "Mother Says," "The Concert," "The Moo Cow Moo" were some of the child verses that brought forth the loudest applause.

One of the heaviest numbers given by Mrs. Burr was "Freckle's Chickens," by Mrs. Jean Stratton Porter. Mrs. Burr is a personal friend of the authoress, and for that reason gave the spirit of the author in her interpretation of the story. Yesterday was the first public reading Mrs. Burr has ever given of this number.

No one thing attested the real ability of the reader more than her power to hold her large audience throughout the recital, notwithstanding that the hour had arrived for the drills of the Culver Black Horse troop.

Mrs. Burr is a finished and gifted reader. She is being recognized outside of her own state, for recently Mrs. Burr has been filling engagements in many neighboring states and on different Chauauqua platforms.

TEACHING THE INDIAN

Miss Emma Kane, After Eleven Years of Experience, Talks of the Red Children.

Miss Emma Kane, a sister of Thomas Kane, of the Winona Assembly directory, is at Winona Lake. She is resting from eleven years of work as a teacher in the Indian schools of Dakota, California and Washington. During the eleven years Miss Kane made a close study of the Indian as he was touched by the educational influences thrown about him by civilization. The Indian has ceased to resist these influences and is now seemingly willing to "go the white man's way," she said. He allows his children to go to school. There is no compulsory education law among the Indians. When the ration system was in vogue, often the threat of withholding the rations would be made to the Indian who did not send his child to the reservation school. Now moral suasion alone can be used.

An Indian kindergarten is Miss Kane's hobby. The Indian children take to the kindergarten as ducks to water and, Miss Kane said, the Indian child is ahead of the white child in his appreciation of the games. The trained Indian eye is inherited by these little five-year-olds who do the most beautiful work in color design in their weaving and games.

It was the policy of the government at one time to have a kindergarten in every government school, but the present administration is not in such thorough touch with the ideas of Froebel. The distinction in benefits between the reservation and the non-reservation schools was explained by Miss Kane, who feels that the non-reservation schools are not as good in that they take the Indian child so entirely away from his environment. In these schools the child is taken away from his parent, unless they live in the vicinity of the school, and for years is kept in the school, without going home unless the parents have the money to pay the child's traveling expenses during the summer vacation. Often after the three years schooling the child continues in the school for another three or six years, and by the time he is ready to go back to his reservation or his people, there is nothing in common between the boy or girl and the people.

Undoubtedly the Indian has the parental love for his child that the white man has, and it is a sacrifice to the Indian parent to be separated for many years from his children. In the reservation schools the child is sent home every vacation at government expense.

The head of the Indian schools of today favors the doing away with the boarding school as soon as possible and substituting the day school. Of course the day school is only possible in thickly settled Indian districts. At these day schools the child on coming to school is bathed and dressed in school clothes. His dinner is served at the school and on leaving the school in the evening the school clothes are again left. This precaution is necessary for cleanliness and also to punctuality, for if the clothes were worn home in many instances there would be no clothes for school.

Miss Kane thinks that the Indian does not lend himself to the influence of the school as quickly as does the negro. The negro boy trained in the institutions of the South is able to leaven his entire community. Not so with the Indian. The older people of the tribes do not respond quickly, if at all, to the pupils who return from the non-reservation schools. This fact is the strongest plea for the day school or reservation school in that the parent may learn from his daily association with the child.

There is a great distinction between the children brought from the mission Indians and those who have not had this training. Many of the latter class are brought into the schools direct from their teepees having never seen or used a knife, fork or napkin.

Seated at the tables in the boarding schools, these children are quick to see and Miss Kane says the bright eyes of the Indian child of five, who knows no word of English, will watch how to open and spread a napkin and in a short time has mastered the knife and fork problem.

We did not buy our spring goods until late, so we have not overstocked as some juvenile buyers have. Kingery & Myers.
