A LONG DISTANCE CONTEST

Youngsters Far From Home Are Now
at Winona Boy City—Getting Settled Down.

There is "somethin' doin'" in the Winona Boy City. Maybe 250 youngsters are turning the big camp at the south end of the lake into a monster playground. Scores of boys are traveling day and night to get to the mimic city. Several hundred from Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and other Middle Western States will be on hand before the day ends. The Boy City seems to have developed into a long distance contest, one in which the young civilians are trying to see who can come the longest distance to participate in the activities of the camp. Five boys are here from Buffalo, N. Y. Five came last evening from Savannah, Ga. There is a boy here from Oklahoma, who came in the care of his grandfather. Another boy is from North Carolina, and his father, about fifty years old, came with him. The father is having as much fun out of the juvenile municipality as is the son. A boy came from Reno, Nevada, in the care of his mother. But the long distance record is held by Harry Simmons and Cecil Renchard, who say they left San Francisco on July 1 to earn their way to Winona Lake. Much of the distance was covered on fast freight trains by these two eighteen-year-olds. They are telling stories of hard times on the way, little sleep and little to eat. They spent July Fourth on the American desert in the far West, their stopping point being a water tank, where they missed meals while waiting for a freight train. Today they are earning their keep in the Boy City by peeling potatoes and doing similar work about the camp restaurant.

For two days boys have been coming to Winona Lake on every train, and many more are due to arrive today. Delegations will by Thursday be here from Peru, Plymouth, Alexandria, Marion, Nappanee, Rochester, Portland, Lafayette, Decatur, Huntington, Mishawaka and South Bend. Campers are also to be on the grounds from Chicago, Madison, Wis.; Detroit, Port Huron, Mich.; Bradford, Pa.; Reno, Nev.; Homer and Olney, Ill., and other cities.

From some of these places a dozen boys have come, from others the number will be a hundred. It looks as if the number of "kids" who will spend the next three weeks in the Winona woods will be over 1,000, and 1,500 may be nearer the number. A house wren at nest-building time was never more busy or more restless than the boys now at the camp. Tents, trunks and other camp baggage has been hauled into the woods by the truck loads, and unpacking kitchen outfits and sleeping equipment has been the order. Camp making is warm work in the Hoosier temperature in August, and it induces dozens and dozens of boys to swim in the lake. Every delegation is headed by a man from home who has the confidence of both boys and parents, and he sees to it first that a place to sleep and to eat is made ready. Boys are coming so thick and fast that the grown managers of the camp are giving all of their attention to seeing that the "kids" are first of all made comfortable, and it will be two or three days before the real camp fun begins—although the getting ready is fun for the boys who are participating in it. But the camp fires, the moving picture shows, the storytelling, band concerts—all these things and many more have not yet begun. The daily newspaper is going, so is the restaurant, but the postoffice has not opened for business, and the bank can not get under way until the boyish bankers from Anderson come to-day to start it. The candy store is going and is doing a thriving business. A large manufacturer of candy in Council Bluffs sent the candy store almost a dray load of sweets as a gift.

Politics has hardly broken out in the municipality, but Joe Clark, of Portland, is actively at work on votes for mayor. He has as a booster the present mayor, Frank Abbott, of Goshen, who is giving the Clark cause the strength of the Abbott "machine." Politics will stay in the background until all of the campers are here.

The editors of the Boy City Advocate, the morning newspaper of the camp, have written to a number of prominent men over the country making known the purposes of the mimic city. The first reply to these letters came from Thomas R. Marshall, of Columbia City, Democratic candidate for Governor. He wrote: "I do not pretend to be one of the great men of my country. I simply believe myself to be one who desires the accomplishment of those things which fit this and all succeeding generations to be worthy of citizenship in the greatest country since the gates of Eden closed on mankind. We speak of a liberal education. It was the education of theiberos, or Roman citizens. It had to do with fitting him for the discharge of his duty toward the gods of Rome, towards the state, towards himself. The movement which you have inaugurated is the beginning, early in life, of such an education. Believe me, although you may understand all mysteries, and have at your fingers' grasp all knowledge, yet unless He without whose approving smile our labors are all in vain, be round about you, as the mountains are round about Jerusalem, you are not fitted for the highest type of American citizenship. There are none of us who have fallen below the ideal who do not wish that you may reach it."

OLD FRIEND COMES BACK

Leon H. Vincent, Known to Older Winonians, Gives First of His Series of Lectures.

Leon H. Vincent was enthusiastically welcomed at his initial Winona lecture yesterday afternoon. No lecturer who ever visited Winona, retains his same audience year after year as does Mr. Vincent. Many in the audience were present years ago when Mr. Vincent first lectured at Winona and have never missed a Winona lecture of his in all these years.

Mr. Vincent said that he chose an historical subject for his lessons this season hoping that they would attract a few men. In this he was not disappointed, for more men were present than usual at an afternoon lecture. Mr. Vincent said of the four historians of whom he was to lecture George Bancroft was easily first in rank. Bancroft was one of a family of thirteen children, his parents, said Mr. Vincent "having no superstitions on this matter." Bancroft studied in a German university, which was an unusual privilege at this time.

Bancroft was good looking and good natured, but his success as a minister was marred by his floridity, a fault which he never overcame. Later Bancroft tried school teaching, but retired from "Round Hill," his school, in 1830. A little prior to this time was published his first book of verse which was a failure in most respects. Bancroft tried oratory and politics, and his entrance to this area was marked by an enthusiastic patriotism but little judgment.

After leaving his school room Bancroft started his life's work and in 1834 was published his first volume of the history of the United States. In 1837 appeared his second volume. Bancroft, though publicly honored, refused to take office until the death of his first wife. He then was collector of the port of Boston, and under him Nathaniel Hawthorne held office. Bancroft was a Democrat and as such ran for Governor of Massachusetts, but was defeated. Bancroft was in favor of Texas coming into the Union and his ideas here were unique. He was later honored by a place in the cabinet. As secretary of the navy Bancroft had the honor of establishing the naval academy at Annapolis. This was his greatest achievement, outside of his literary work.

Later Mr. Bancroft was minister to England and here store houses were opened to him that had never been opened to living man. Mr. Vincent said that a better history of the United States can be written when there comes a man who has finer opportunities than had Bancroft. He returned to New York in 1852 and then volume after volume of his great histories appeared and he continued this active work until his eightieth year.

The lapse between the ninth and tenth volumes of his histories was when Bancroft served as minister to Germany. While in Berlin Bancroft accomplished much to his credit along diplomatic lines. After his return from Germany Bancroft made his permanent home at Washington, alternating between that place and his summer home at Newport.

"The manner of Bancroft's history is as stately as the matter," said the lecturer. "You get no gossip in Bancroft's history and one returns with pleasure to his volumes after reading some of the light histories of today."

The real power Bancroft is found in the volumes on the constitution. He is always logically exact at this time, never dramatic or purely literary. Chapter after chapter is read in a strain and so long was Bancroft in writing his histories that his style entirely changed and Mr. Vincent doubts if for the better. According to Bancroft, whatever is American is right. After reading Bancroft continually one feels like taking off one's hat to a stuffed eagle. Bancroft was writing a history of the democratic idea and should not be criticised because of a modern point of view of a historian. He was also criticised for not imbedding in his history the doctrine of evolution, but it must be remembered, said Mr. Vincent, that the first volume was written twenty-five years before Darwin's book appeared. Some critics say that Bancroft did not take criticism well, but Mr. Vincent said that he did not believe that it made anyone cheerful to be adversely criticised. Bancroft knew more than any other man of his day on the subject of history.

Of the ninety years of his life he gave sixty five of them to the following of one idea and for thirty years or more was read and believed as no other historian.

A Winona Wedding Announced.

Mrs. A. Reynolds has issued invitations to the wedding of her daughter Margaret to Mr. Heman T. Powers, to occur at the Tioga cottage Tuesday evening, August 11th.

Miss Reynolds has resided at Winona for about nine years and formerly attended the Park school.

Mr. Powers graduated from the Winona Academy in 1906 and is now secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Keokuk, Iowa. Miss Reynold's father was for a number of years before his death, in charge of Winona's real estate department.

Dr. Dickey will perform the ceremony.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

"Getting of the Narrative," Subject at 10 O'clock Hour.

Dr. Palmer spoke at the 10 o'clock Bible hour yesterday. "The Getting of the Narrative" was the subject of the morning. Dr. Palmer said that naturalness and accuracy are the two essentials of a good narrative, and that he accepts the book of Job as historical. The historical setting of the book of Job was described by Dr. Palmer who called upon different members of the class to give the story of the chapters. In this story telling Dr. Palmer emphasized his point of the necessity of accuracy.

Dr. Palmer gave explanations of difficult passages in the text. "The children of the east," the day, and numbers of cattle owned by Job's family were particularly mentioned. The "sons of God" are angels, that are pictured as ministering spirits. After all the birthday parties were over, Job went through the process of sanctification.

The study of the chapters brought out that the Sabaeans took away the she-asses and oxen. Fire from heaven killed 3,000 sheep and servants. The Chaldeans carried away the camels. The naturalness of the story is maintained here, as the fire took the animal that was most gentle and unresisting, while the Bedowin tribes carried away the animals that could do them the most good.

The three friends came by appointment and could see Job afar off because of the flat country. The story still continues in this perfectly natural way. The story of Job can be placed in time along with that of Abraham because of descriptions of customs similar in both instances. The kinds of diseases afflicting Job were given in Job 7:5, 13:28, 19:20, 30:17-18-30, 33:21, as open sores, rottenness, skin and bones, constant pains, binding, black skin, fever and protruding bones, which without doubt was black leprosy, the most loathful of diseases.

An outline of the speeches show that the conversation alternates between Job and his friends. The argument of the speeches show that Job wishes the day of his birth forgotten and questions why he did not die at birth. Why does God put men in misery and not tell the reason for suffering. From these arguments Job works his way to the final judgment that he will praise God at all times and for all things.

The book of Jonah along the line of question making is the assignment for today. Each member of the class is requested to read the book and prepare two mass questions on the chapters of the book.

Return Engagement of Weil's Band.

The favor with which Weil's band was received last week has resulted in the Winona management securing these popular musicians for a return engagement of four concerts, to be given August 5 and 6, afternoon and evening.

NEW SPEAKER THIS WEEK

Dr. W. C. Covert, of Chicago, Will Be the Teacher at the 9 and 11 O'clock Hours.

Dr. W. C. Covert, of Chicago, is the new speaker at the Bible school this week at both the 9 and 11 o'clock hours. Dr. Covert is still a young man, but is old in his knowledge of the Scriptures and his lesson of yesterday morning on "Paul and Teachings" was a revelation of the character of this Bible writer.

Dr. Covert said that after his invitation from Dr. Palmer to speak at Winona he buried himself in his study of Paul and was dead to all other pleasures. This study had imparted to him an enthusiasm that was reflected in his large class.

The speaker said the object of the morning lesson was to deepen the interest in the personality of Paul. Bismarck, Browning and Lowell are the three greatest letter writers of modern times and have stimulated interest in the study of their lives because of the beauty of their letters—so with Paul.

Paul was prepared for his work by an ancestry that had splendid red corpuscles in their blood. This ancestry brought Paul into touch with Old Testament dispensation and was helpful in developing the strength of Paul's character for his world's work. Paul had a marvelous education and cosmopolitan character. He was brought up in Tarsus, the most cosmopolitan of cities. Besides this, Paul had a leadership by nature as he was of commanding presence. The world was prepared by the wonderful teaching of Paul and all nations were gathered at the forum in Rome in unification. Greek was the universal language of the unified people and no language could have been used that would have given the delicate shadings of the Greek. The pagan faith was losing its followers and the people were leaving the pagan temple for rope dancers. They were ready to receive the teachings of a new faith and followed Paul in multitudes.

Dr. Covert said he thought of Paul as a refined, courteous "Billy" Sunday, for he had such a passion for preaching the Gospel that he would do anything to save souls.

The indomitable will of Paul emphasized his great intellect. By means of this he harmonized the Christian religion that was crying for a leader of both intellect and strength. All literature is full of letters at the period Paul wrote. From a literary standpoint alone, Paul's letters cause all others to be uninteresting and poorly written. Outside of the Bible, perhaps Seneca wrote the greatest essay on Friendship. Compare this with the chapter written by Paul, and one can see how the spirit of God was wanting in Seneca's writings. In all of Paul's letters there are practical conclusions that had nothing whatever to do with the letters proper. This was characteristic of all Paul's letters and showed him to be the preacher as well as teacher. Paul had a way of letting large principles govern his conduct in small matters. This is illustrated by the question asked at Corinth in regard to eating meat. "If meat causeth my brother to offend I will eat no more meat while the world stands," answered Paul.

With a deep personal enthusiasm and merited quickening must one approach the letters of Paul. Not a mere academic approach will reveal the beauty and mastery of Paul's writings. Paul was so very human and so much a part of our race that the human acts are noted with interest. In Acts 28:3 one reads of Paul gathering a bundle of sticks and placing them on the fire. He was large enough to do the little things when God's big purpose was in it. Acts 20:34 shows Paul not afraid of manual labor yet he knew what academic abilities were. He always worked and despised the man who did not work. Acts 15:29 pictures the human Paul in a human experience. Paul had such an inexhaustible enthusiasm in preaching the Gospel that he talked all night and the children cried for him, which proves his gentleness combined with his intellect.

Dr. Covert asked the members of the 9 o'clock Bible class to bring the American edition of the Bible to class today, as that edition throws the most light in a critical study of Paul's Gospel.

Friends' Conference at Winona.

Miss Mary Whitson, of Philadelphia, is at Winona park arranging for the Friends' General Conference, which will late in August begin a week's meeting here. The conference seldom meets west of Pennsylvania and it has been ten years since it met in Indiana. Most of its membership is in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and around New York City, and most of the representation at the coming conference will be from those regions. At least 800 Friends will be in attendance, and Miss Whitson has come to Winona Lake to look after their hotel comforts. She expects a large number of Friends from over Indiana and Ohio, who will not have a voice in the affairs of the conference, but will come to hear the notable speakers.

Miss Whitson is inspecting cottages, is trying the table fare at the hotels and boarding houses which will be open at conference time, and is making up a list of these places, for she will direct the assignment of the visitors to lodgings. Friends in a number of places are engaging cottages which they will fill with colonies from home. Enough Friends from Pendleton are coming to fill two or three cottages. Sixteen Friends from Wabash county have engaged the Willard cottage for the conference period. Friends from Canton, Ohio, will take a cottage and will bring their provisions from home.

THE PURITY FEDERATION.

Rev. M. C. Hartzell Spoke on "The Church and Purity."

A short history of the National Purity Federation was given by the president of the federation before the lecture of yesterday afternoon. This is the third regular meeting of the federation, the first being held in La-Crosse, Wisconsin, and the second in Battle Creek, Mich. Many societies have affiliated with the Purity Federation and through standing committees this federation is making a determined fight against social impurity in all its forms.

Rev. Morton C. Hartzell spoke on "The Church and Purity" at 1:30 o'clock at the auditorium. He said in part that no power in the world can go to the heart of these moral questions, but the power of Jesus. The majority of the blind in this country are the children of immoral parents.
Dr. Hartzell said if there is ever a time when a preacher can speak, it is when he is officiating at the funeral of one of these women. The law is not only unequal, but it is not supported or enforced against certain crimes. Dr. Hartzell criticised the women who are too busy with other church duties to make an active fight against immorality. There are always property owners who will lease their property for any purpose for certain money considerations. Too many policemen are on friendly terms with the keepers of resorts. Dr. Hartzell told of the experiences that came to him while working in a reform club in Chicago. More than fifty questionable places have moved out of one district alone in Chicago in the last ten days, and other districts are fast clearing themselves of like resorts.

WHO'S WHO.

Dr. W. C. Covert, the new teacher at the Bible school, is pastor of the Presbyterian church at Grand boulevard and Forty-first street, Chicago.
He found this church in debt and through the few years of his pastorate he has not only been able to lift the debt, but to have his church aid financially many of the poorer Chicago churches. Dr. Covert is also a newspaper man and has written extensively for the Interior. An article written by Dr. Covert on Winona for The Interior was published in pamphlet form by Thomas Kane, president of Winona Assembly, and circulated broadcast along the route of the Peru railroad as the best thing possible to advance the interests of the Winona railroads.

Miss Cooke Pleased Large Audience.

Although only a half hour was at her disposal, Miss Marjorie Benton Cooke demonstrated her pronounced ability as a reader at the auditorium last night in some very pleasing selections.

ABLE AND UPLIFTING

Are the Addresses of Dr. William C. Covert on the Great Christian Characters.

Dr. William C. Covert, of Chicago, gave the first of a series of addresses on the great religious worthies at the 11 o'clock Bible hour yesterday. The subject was Saint Augustine. It was one of the most graphic, brilliant and spiritually uplifting addresses it has been the privilege of Winonians to hear this season.

Dr. Covert prefaced his address by saying that he had written to Dr. A. T. Pierson, asking this eminent divine to refer him to a work on the great Christian leaders of all time, and Dr. Pierson answered that he knew of no book of the kind and suggested that Dr. Covert write one himself, which the latter decided to do, as the present series of lectures will be later published in book form.

Proceeding to St. Augustine Dr. Covert said that the great religious movements have come about through the great characters or beacon lights who have flashed the signal flames to their followers down the ages. The gold of truth is washed down to us from the heights, mixed with the debris of the centuries.

One of the celebrated pictures of St. Augustine gives him with upturned eyes, a pen in his right hand and a flaming heart in his left. The eyes represented aspiration, the pen the scholar and teacher, and the flaming heart his zeal to redeem the hearts of men. Augustine was the last great son of Africa. Next to the Apostle Paul, he exerted the most powerful and permanent influence over the thought of the Christian world of any man.

Augustine was born in the year A. D. 354. His mother was a sweet and beautiful woman who was intensely spiritual. His father was a brute, who did little to support the family of three children. As a boy, Augustine was difficult to manage and inclined to be wayward. He was sent away from home to school. Here he came under pagan influences. When he returned he was to all appearances a ruined boy. He was next sent to Carthage. Here his ambitions kindled. He decided to be a rhetorician. Here opened the saddest chapter in his life. He threw himself with utter abandon into the gay and depraved life of the pagan city of Carthage. It was the story of the prodigal son. But there had never been a day since he had first left the home village that his mother had not prayed for him that God would lead him out of all pitfalls and use him for His glory. He found at Carthage a book by Cicero on truth which fired him anew. It somewhat appeased his soul, but did not satisfy it, and while thus groping for the truth he found the Bible. But before he had a chance to know much of the Bible, he was lured aside by a society which taught that good and evil were two equal forces. He followed this creed for nine years, but it left him sick and weary of heart. He went home to attend the funeral of a friend, and found his mother still praying for him. While there he made a sudden resolution to go to Rome. His mother pleaded with him to abandon the idea, but unbeknown to her he slipped away and boarded a boat one night and before she had learned of his disappearance he was on the ocean bound for Rome.

But the luxury and cynicism of Rome did not satisfy his soul. The soul of a man is made for God and there is no rest for him until he finds God. His tutors in Rome were agnostics, and called truth a mirage. There is no more pathetic incident in history than we find Augustine at this time blindly seeking truth and yet in despair because his thirst for the water of life was not slaked.

The mother prayed on. Then came the great turning point in his life. He was called to Milan to teach, and here met the great Christian statesman Ambrose. Ambrose became his teacher. He first studied the sayings of the great philosopher Plato, who led more people to the Bible than anyone outside the Apostle Paul. And then he took up the writings of Paul and the light came and he was converted. Then followed his great service for the church. For many years he fearlessly preached the word, taught other disciples and ministered to the poor. From that time to his death there was no more valiant soldier for his Lord and Savior than Augustine.

The greatest lesson we can learn today from Augustine is to see sin as it is despite our prejudices and selfish interests, and to rebuke it and exterminate it whatever the cost.

Announcement.

The continued interest shown in Winona bonds makes necessary the running of another special car over the line for the benefit of prospective investors. In charge of General Superintendent Dickey, the car will leave the entrance building of the park tomorrow (Wednesday) morning at 8:30 sharp, returning in time for dinner. An opportunity will be given to inspect the power house, which is considered one of the best in the country, and where white dresses are perfectly safe.

This will be a delightful opportunity for prospective investors to see and judge the property for themselves.

In order to secure free transportation it is only necessary to call Tuesday at room 17, Administration building. Car leaves Wednesday morning at 8:30.

Mrs. William Shea and Lawrence Shea, of Houghton, Mich., are at Kosciusko Lodge.

L. M. Scott, teacher of swimming, gives lessons from 11 to 12 and from 2 to 4. Complete course of seven lessons, $5; single lessons, $1 each.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

At Hillside Meeting Last Sunday Evening When New Improvements Were Dedicated.

Probably the most impressive hillside service ever held at Winona was witnessed and heard by the large audience present last Sunday evening.

The occasion was the dedication of the new platform and seats which were secured through the efforts of several Winona ladies. The platform is of plain, but pleasing design, and substantially constructed of concrete blocks. It adds to the appearance of the hillside, and is admirably adapted to the needs of these services. There is a new organ, considerably larger than the old one, and a new pulpit stand. The new seats are comfortable and every Winonian has cause for gratitude at the improvements made possible through the faithfulness of these good women and their friends.

Dr. S. C. Dickey led the meeting. Around him were some of the men who have unwaveringly stood shoulder to shoulder with him in victory and seeming defeat through all these years, that they might help their leader realize as many as possible of his great hopes for Winona.

E. F. Yarnelle painted a beautiful word picture of God's great goodness in making such a wonderful world, and that notwithstanding its complexity and vastness, nothing was neglected, even the little violet was tenderly preserved through all the storm and chill of winter by the ever watchful Father, and how much more we are the objects of His thoughtful care. Mr. Yarnelle said that surely the hand of God could be seen in the history of Winona's life since the foundations were laid. He had a cottage on the grounds before Dr. Dickey and his associates came. At that time there was nothing but the wooded shore of the lake where the park now is. The only building was a shed used for shelter by picnickers. Here Mr. Yarnelle organized the first Sunday school on the grounds, which was composed of his own and a few other families.

E. A. K. Hackett, another director and staunch friend of Winona since its inception, made an earnest and eloquent appeal to all present to acknowledge and meet their responsibility to God. He told of how good and patient and long suffering our Heavenly Father has been to us all, and that before the opening of another day it might be that some would be ushered before their Maker. He said that no matter what our fortune in worldly things, we would not find peace and satisfaction until we had put ourselves in harmony with our Heavenly Father, and tried to do the things He would have us do.

The last speaker was Dr. S. C. Dickey, the tireless and consecrated leader of all branches of the Winona movement. It is hard for anyone outside of Dr. Dickey and his associates to appreciate the obstacles and discouragements which have at times beset these faithful servants of God in the building of these great enterprises bearing the name of Winona, whose object is the glory of God and the advancement of His Kingdom on the earth. Dr. Dickey spoke feelingly as he recalled some of the times of sorrow and trial he and the other friends of Winona had had to undergo. Sometimes when the clouds were darkest, it would seem that he was all alone, but above all the trials and discouragements came the light and cheer of God and Christ's strength and presence, and he knew they would never fail him while he was doing their will. Dr. Dickey said that the two passages of Scripture that had been of the greatest help and comfort to him were, "Acknowledge God in all thy ways, and He shall direct thy paths," and the one where Christ seems alone in Pilate's judgment hall, yet not alone for He knew the Father was with Him.

At the conclusion of Dr. Dickey's remarks, a motion made and seconded from the audience that all who wished to express their approval of the work so far done at Winona and to say to Dr. Dickey and his associates that they would support them in every way possible in their future efforts should rise, brought everyone present to their feet.

E. O. Excell led the music. E. F. Yarnelle and daughter sang a duet, and the Owens quartet gave the closing number.

It was a service which will long be remembered by all in attendance.

INVESTMENT TALKS
NO. 19.

Where a real investment is desired—that is, where it is desired to definitely employ $100, or a multiple thereof, for a certain time at a fixed rate of income with a guarantee of the return of the full principal at the expiration of the investment—bonds are the ideal form of security, which meet every requirement.

Bonds are the cornerstone of conservative investment.

First mortgage bonds, as the name implies are secured by a first mortgage on some particular property. The mortgage, being for a larger amount, however, than can ordinarily be carried by an individual, is made to some trust company as trustee, and the mortgage is then divided into small parts, each part being called a bond. It is the duty of the trust company to see that the mortgage is what it purports to be, that the interest is paid when due, that the principal is met at the expiration of the time stipulated and that the proceeds from the sale of the bonds are used for the purpose intended in their issuance. When it is known that one's funds should be employed ten or twenty years, it is unwise to make investments which will be paid off in a shorter time. Not only will the funds need to be reinvested, if they are placed for too short a period, but frequently they cannot be reinvested upon as favorable terms. On the other hand, in the event of unforeseen need, bonds are readily convertible into cash before maturity either by selling or securing a loan upon them. First mortgage bonds, therefore, have all the security of a first mortgage and the additional advantages of running through a greater portion of the time desired for investment together with easier and quicker convertibility into cash.

For those desiring to employ money ten years, or less, the first mortgage bonds of the Winona Assembly meet every requirement while the first mortgage bonds of the Winona Interurban Railway answer perfectly the desires of those wishing a longer investment of absolute security and reasonable profitability. Financial Agents, Room 17, Administration building.

Bound volumes of the Winona Assembly Review will be furnished at the end of the season at $1.50 each.

There are a great many persons who find that after any little excitement or unusual exertion they are sure to have headache; or if they have the least little cold it results in Neuralgia. Many are unable to get relief, only after a spell of severe suffering. They cannot understand why they are afflicted in this way. The fact is, all aches or pains are nervous disorders, and indicate a weakness or exhaustion of certain nerve branches. For instance, if it is headache, the brain nerves are irritated through weakness or exhaustion; if neuralgia it is an affection of the more prominent nerve branches in the head or some part of the body, more frequently in the facial nerves. To overcome troubles of this nature you must have a remedy that will quiet the irritable condition of these nerves. There is no more successful remedy for this purpose than Dr. Miles' AntiPain Pills. In fact they are used by sufferers from these causes in almost every town, city or hamlet in the United States. Because they leave no disagreeable after-effects and do not derange the stomach or bowels, those who use them once are almost sure to keep them by them for future use and to hand to friends who suffer in like manner. They are equally good for the relief of rheumatism, sciatica, headache or other aches and pains in any part of the body, for their quieting influence seldom fails to bring relief from any pain. They are sold in all drug stores. Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Indiana, will mail aluminum souvenir box with samples free, on request by postal card.
